The So-Called 'Best Man'

In what must have seemed an endless chore of selecting persons who will direct the many operations of the Executive Department, Sen. John Kennedy was seeking not so much a "team," but men who can make government "work."

Because he is a professional in the art of politics, he knew better than to select that mythical "best man" so dear to the hearts of editorial writers and civic club pundits. The "best-man" idea long has needed debunking. It connotes, in its accepted, popular meaning, some fine fellow who has made an undoubted success at business or in one of the professions.

Those who are so glib with the "best-man-regardless-of-politics" phrase nurse the idea that if a secretary of the treasury is needed, a president need only to reach into one of the nation's largest banks where, undoubtedly, sits a man who is viewed as a "success." If he needs a secretary of agriculture, why then let him find somewhere a fellow who operates vast acreages of land, is a director of his town's bank, and otherwise has demonstrated his ability at farming.

This is a dangerous fallacy. We have but to think back to some of Mr. Eisenhower's "best-man" choices in 1952 to produce glaring examples of how erroneous this may be.

Competence

Some of those who were selected by Mr. Kennedy were men he had not met prior to consultation about appointment. They were chosen because they are deemed able to get things done—to be competent not merely in administration but in ability to wander in the no-man's land between the Congress, the White House, and the courts. "The-best-man-regardless-of-politics" might well be a babe in the woods, utterly lost and helpless.

This is precisely why Adlai Stevenson could not be named secretary of state. He was easily the best prepared, or qualified. Millions around the world would have hailed his appointment with pleasure. There would have been a surge of pro-United States sentiment. But there were too many enemies in the Congress and out.

In selecting a treasurer, the President had to take into consideration the increasing protectionist demand in this country. Most of our thinkers believe there must be more trade. We cannot expand our economy without it. In an industrial world, trade is essential. It was not too long ago that manufacturing countries shipped to the great consumer-goods markets. India was an example. India had nothing to sell save raw materials and a few handcraft items.

This situation no longer exists. It is necessary for the treasurer to contend with a Congress containing all these elements of economic pressure and financial theories, as well as with financial leaders.

Semantics

It is absurd to say politics should not play a part. Here again we have the problem of semantics. Corrupt politics should not be a factor. But politics must. One of a president's appointments, for example, needs to be adept in maintaining close touch with the party, the state chairmen, et cetera. It is wise, if government is to "work," to select with a territorial basis in mind. The South, for example, was honored with the appointment of North Carolina's Governor Hodges as secretary of commerce. It is folly to ignore the pluralism of our society. No sensible man would have a cabinet which did not contain a representative Catholic, Jew and Protestant. Some of the appointments were personal, some political.

But in every one, the dominant consideration was "can he get things done?"

We are a political nation. From the lowest office to the highest, we are governed by men and women whom we elect. We hope always to remain a political nation. Therefore, we will have government by politics and political men. We can hope, and try to find, men and women to fill offices who are honest and honorable.

Storm Snaps Ship, Hurls Crew in Sea

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Stormy seas broke the back of an American tanker Wednesday 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras—the storied graveyard of the Atlantic. Hours later, some of her 39 crew members floundered in the mountaineous waves or clung to the vessel's upright stern section.

Another tanker on the scene reported an unidentified number of crewmen aboard the stern section of the stricken ship—the 10,417-ton Pine Ridge—said, "Everything is okay." There was no immediate word of loss of life.

SURVIVORS COUNTED

Later, a Coast Guard plane said it counted 10 survivors aboard the stern section, which it reported was rolling heavily and drifting rapidly. The Coast Guard emphasized there could be more crewmen aboard than the 10 counted by the plane.

The plane also reported spotting five men, three of them in a life raft, floating in the heavy seas some two miles south-southwest of the bow section and drifting away. Two planes dropped life rafts and life jackets capable of accommodating more than 50 men.

The tanker Esso Jamestown, which arrived some six hours after the Pine Ridge broke in half, reported a water temperature of 74 degrees, indicating chances of survival in the water were good if the crewmen were not swamped and drowned by the raging seas.

BOW, STERN DRIFTING

The bow section of the Pine Ridge, which had sailed in ballast from New York for Corpus Christi, Tex., capsized and bobbed in the rolling seas about 14 miles from the stern section.

Several lights were reported burning in the stern section by the Esso Jamestown. The rescuing tanker also reported the bow section was just visible above the water some 14 miles away.

Planes and surface craft bucked 50- to 60-knot winds on their rescue missions to the spot about 172 miles southeast of Norfolk, where Fifth District Coast Guard headquarters directed the mercy teams.

SURVIVAL KITS

A Coast Guard plane dropped three life rafts, signal gear and pure water to the imperiled crew, whose distress first was reported by a Norwegian tanker in the area.

The Norwegian ship, the Artemis, reported it was unable to attempt a rescue because of the high seas. The tanker was told by the Coast Guard late in the day to remain on station in the area until other ships arrived.

An armada of ships was

Sheriff Greer said he jailed the man, John Franklin Henry, Negro, 30, on charges of stealing an automobile.

The crash came just a month after another DC3 of the same airline plowed into a mountain killing 33.

Winter Howling In With Icy Day in 20s

By CHARLES MOORE

If you thought the first day of winter was cold, just wait until you see the second. Thursday promises to be much colder.

Winter's second day is expected to see temperatures in Atlanta rise no higher than a freezing 32 Thursday afternoon after a plunge to 12 degrees in the morning. Friday will be a little better: temperature extremes of 15 and 40 degrees are expected.

The cold wave is part of a massive cold air system that is raging through the Midwest, the Northeast and extending freezing temperatures deep into Florida.

In the last three days, at least 42 deaths were attributed to the weather throughout the nation.

Frigid Arctic winds will continue to try to blow off overcoats Thursday. However, it won't be as gusty as Wednesday—when winds averaged about 23 miles an hour throughout the day with gusts up to 40.

Skies will continue to be cloudless and the chance of a white Christmas in Georgia are as remote as a thaw in the Yukon, the weatherman says.

Snow flurries were noted in Atlanta Wednesday morning as the cold front moved into the area and a half-inch was reported on the ground in the Ellijay-Blue Ridge area.

There was some ice on highways in the Blue Ridge area, the State Patrol said, but roads remained open and traffic moved freely.

Putting the chill on Georgia and the Southeast is polar air that is continuing to pour into the North-Central States and spreading eastward across the nation.

Christmas in Early Georgia

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

The first Christmas a whole generation of Georgians can remember—those who were Santa Claus age in the World War I years—was a freakish one.

The weather was bitter, there was a fuel shortage and, for the patriotic at least, holidays which were "heatless, sweetless, meatless." The guest of honor in most Georgia households wasn't the old man in the red suit and white beard but a young man in khaki.

Last of a series.

Eight thousand soldiers from Camp Gordon near Atlanta were given a 38-hour furlough and The Constitution ran a daily appeal to people to "take one or more of these boys into your home during or for the entire time."

Gifts were short in the stores and although there was plenty of entertainment—tea dances, bal masques, community parties—they were all geared to make life pleasanter for the "boys in khaki" at one of the neighboring camps. These boys, poor fellows, had suffered in the influenza epidemic, been on short rations and were facing the prospect of being shipped overseas.

The women of Georgia, who had been reared on tales of the courage and resourcefulness of their mothers and grandmothers in the Civil War days, poured enormous energy, strength and such funds as they had into making Christmas happy for the fighting men. There was a gigantic Christmas tree on the parade ground at Ft. McPherson with gifts and special treats for every man on the spot.

Grand Jury in Fulton Throws Out Charges Against Griffin, Shaw

Brinson Indicted in Fraud Case

By JACK STRONG

The Fulton County grand jury Wednesday threw out proposed indictments which alleged that former Gov. Marvin Griffin and C. Lawton Shaw, his purchasing agent, conspired to defraud the state of $60,380 while Griffin was governor.

The grand jury "no-billed" the proposed indictments.

A fraud conspiracy indictment was returned, however, against J. W. Brinson, state parks director under Griffin. Brinson previously had pleaded guilty to other state fraud charges and was given a two-year suspended sentence. He was not present when the indictments were read Wednesday.

HINTS HE'LL RUN

Immediately after the decision in his case was announced, Griffin added fresh fuel to reports that he plans to run for governor again in 1962.

In a prepared statement written in anticipation of the grand jury's decision, Griffin reiterated his charge that the proposed indictments were part of a political conspiracy against him. He added:

"I have promised further to meet these conspirators at the crossroads and at the precincts of the militia districts. That I will still do under circumstances and conditions which the conspirators understand. When that day comes I will be there with the same humility I have always had before the soverign people of Georgia."

'THIS AIN'T TIME'

Asked later if this part of his statement means he is announcing his candidacy for governor, Griffin replied:

"This ain't time for making political announcements . . . Those conspirators know what I mean."

The special session grand jury rendered its verdict at 5:55 p.m. on the fifth day of the investigation of charges. Fulton Superior Court Judge Ralph Pharr read the verdicts quietly to a tense group of witnesses and newsmen.

WIVES EMBRACE

Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Shaw embraced after the third verdict was read.

The happy former governor said his first action would be to notify his son aboard the U.S.S. Valley Forge that the jury had found no reason to indict him. Marvin Griffin Jr. is a helicopter pilot aboard the aircraft carrier.

Griffin's attorneys, Houston White and Beryl Weiner, and Shaw's attorneys, Ellis Barrett and Mose Hayes, were part of a

State To Fix Rate On Invested Funds

Gov. Vandiver has called a meeting Dec. 28 of the State Depository Board, the body which will establish the interest rate on the investment of idle state funds.

State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, executive officer of the depository group, said Wednesday the governor advised him of the meeting in a letter.

The board is composed of Hamilton, Gov. Vandiver, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr., Banking Superintendent W. D. Trippe and Compt. Gen. Zack D. Cravey.

Hamilton disclosed he will recommend to the board a formula which would establish the exact interest rates banks will pay the state under a new law requiring the investment of idle state funds.

The treasurer said the formula is "equitable to the state and to the banks" and is flexible so that it is "geared to the money market."

Under a 1960 act, idle state funds must be put in banks on deposit at interest. Trust and federal funds are exempt from the law.

Under the law, idle funds are those which state departments have in excess of their financial operating needs for 45 days.

"Very few departments have idle cash," the treasurer said.

Under the formula Hamilton will propose, the interest rate banks will "change quarterly with the changing money market."

The factor which will gear the formula to the money market will be the average from the previous quarter of the weekly auction market of 90-day and six-month U.S. Treasury bills, Hamilton said.

Since the law went into effect July 1, Hamilton said he established an interest rate for banks to pay until the board could act.

This requires interest of 1 per cent on 30-90 day investments, 2½ per cent on 90-day to six-month bills and 3 per cent on investments of six months or more.

Hamilton said his own department has earned more than $94,000 since July 1 on investments when the new law went into effect.

9 on Plane Feared Dead In Atlantic

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (AP)—The wreckage of a U.S. Navy plane carrying nine men was found Wednesday in the Atlantic 17 miles off the southeast tip of Newfoundland.

All nine men on the P2V Neptune out of Argentia, Nfld., were believed dead. Several bodies were recovered by the U.S. freighter American Clipper. The Navy held little hope of finding the other bodies.

The Neptune, normally based at Brunswick, Maine, was taking part in a fleet exercise off Cape Race when it crashed in clear weather early Wednesday. Cause of the crash was not determined.

The American Clipper discovered the wreckage after finding an empty life raft and a life preserver in the area. All that was found of the plane was a wing-tank and the tail section.

Prisoner Schooling At Alto Is Urged

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

The State Board of Corrections has urged that laws be passed, if necessary, to set up an educational program for young prisoners at the Georgia Industrial Institute.

The recommendation was made in the annual report of the board to the governor and the General Assembly. The report was released Wednesday.

A similar recommendation came recently from the State Board of Education. However, the school board suggested that legislators "consider" whether such a program should be set up.

And the school board also wanted the General Assembly to "designate which state agency should have the responsibility—and the funds—to do this."

The corrections board proposal went further than this. It said such a program should be instituted by the State Department of Education in cooperation with the corrections board.

The corrections unit would maintain custodial supervision and the education department would employ teachers and have

U.S. Will Fail In Laos, Vows China Marshal

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China's top military man, Marshal Lin Piao, Wednesday pledged Peiping will do everything possible to stop U.S. aims in Laos. Lin accused the United States of "blatantly intervening by force of arms" in the southeast Asian kingdom and menacing peace.

Lin's message, broadcast by Peiping radio, did not say how far Red China would go in aiding pro-Communist forces in Laos. It was not sent to them directly but to Vo Nguyen Giap, defense minister in Communist North Viet Nam.

Giap, whose country has aided the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels for years, is the general who drove the French out of Indochina as commander of the Red Vietminh armies. The occasion for the message was the 16th anniversary of the founding of the Vietminh forces.

DRIVEN FROM CAPITAL

Pro-Western forces of Premier Boun Oum and Gen. Phoumi Nosavana, drove leftists from the capital of Vientiane last week with U.S. aid and equipment. The rebels are receiving arms by air from Soviet planes believed based in North Viet Nam.

The pledge from Lin, Red China's defense minister, served to draw the East-West battle lines more firmly in the landlocked Southeast Asian country.

Lin charged the United States and "its lackeys, the reactionary authorities in Thailand," are menacing peace in Southeast Asia by allegedly fomenting civil war in Laos.

RED CHINA'S GOAL

He added that Communist China, its government and its people "are determined to exert their utmost efforts alongside the government and people of the (North) Viet Nam democratic republic to safeguard the Geneva agreements and put a stop to U.S. imperialism's intervention and aggression in Laos."

The 1954 Geneva agreements ended the Indochinese war and committed Laos to a policy of neutrality. The Communists say Boun Oum's government is too close to the West. It has won endorsement from Washington, and renewed U.S. military aid.

Phoumi's soldiers now are reported pursuing the pro-Communist forces under Capt. Kong Le. Western military sources in Laos said the captain and his force of about 800 men have halted their retreat from Vientiane and are taking up positions along a line stretching from Boun Vong, 35 miles north of Vientiane, to Vang Vieng, 110 miles farther north.

The area, a V-shaped valley in the foothills, is a Pathet Lao stronghold. Kong Le probably could triple his strength with Pathet Lao help. Soviet supplies reportedly began coming in by plane shortly before Kong Le's retreat halted there on Monday.

Soviet Offers Hope Of Era of Goodwill

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The Soviet Union denounced U.S. actions Wednesday but expressed the hope that President-elect John F. Kennedy will have "a more positive policy" on issues before the United Nations.

Valerian A. Zorin, the Soviet representative, said at a news conference that Russia hoped that Adlai E. Stevenson, the Kennedy administration's permanent U.N. representative, would show "good will and cooperation" in the solution of problems before the U.N.

ASKS COOPERATION

"For our part we are ready for such cooperation," Zorin added.

Zorin also indicated that Premier Nikita Khrushchev, depending on developments, might not insist that the president-elect apologize for the U2 plane incident and punish those responsible.

After breaking up the summit conference last spring Khrushchev said that he would not meet with President Eisenhower again unless he complied with the Soviet demands regarding the U2 that was downed in Russia May 1.

SEEKING SUMMIT

However, Khrushchev did not mention these demands last October, when he announced that he had told Prime Minister Macmillan of his desire for a Big Four summit meeting on Berlin early next year after the inauguration of Kennedy.

Zorin told a reporter Wednesday that the Soviet Union's decisions regarding the U2 "rather depend on further development of relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union."

"I think," he said, "we will need patience and fortitude and let us wait until the new U.S. administration takes the helm and makes a detectable position on all issues of relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, including this one.

"Let's not be hasty on this matter. Let us think it over carefully in the light of the development of relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, having in mind the coming to power of the new administration."

Whites Must Stay, Congo Leftist Says

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Antoine Gizenga, self-proclaimed head of a rival leftist regime at Stanleyville, Wednesday ordered all white inhabitants to remain in the city.

Gizenga said his order is designed to prevent an economic breakdown in Oriental Province, blockaded by the pro-Western regime here.

Stanleyville has about 1,000 European inhabitants. Reports to the United Nations Command say the white population suffers continual harassment. Europeans are arbitrarily arrested and beaten by rebel military policemen elsewhere in Oriental Province.

A U. N. spokesman said the United Nations will try to intercede so that any foreigner wanting to leave Stanleyville can do so.

The regime of Col. Joseph Mobutu blockaded all road, river and air shipments into Oriental Province.

Reactor for Peace, Israel Assures U.S.

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Israel told the United States Wednesday that its big nuclear reactor is for peaceful purposes only. U.S. officials, already worried about repercussions in the Arab world, declined to say whether the explanation was satisfactory.

The Israeli assurances were relayed to the State department by Ambassador Avraham Harman. He presented portions of the statement made Wednesday in the Israeli parliament by Premier David Ben-Gurion, who also denied his country is making an atomic bomb.

BEYOND PEACE NEEDS

State department Press Officer Lincoln White, asked if the United States was satisfied with the Israeli explanation, said he could not go beyond a brief announcement confirming that the assurances had been received.

Ben-Gurion said the reactor, now being constructed in the Negev Desert, will have a capacity of 24,000 thermal kilowatts.

The department's reluctance to say whether it was satisfied apparently stemmed from the belief of U.S. officials that the size of the new reactor indicates it is far beyond anything needed for peaceful purposes.

OFFICIALS CONCERNED

Officials privately expressed deep concern over the possible political consequences of the development in the troubled Middle East, where Israel and the Arabs still are in a technical state of war.

Some fears were voiced that the mere possibility of Israeli A-bomb efforts might drive the jittery Arabs into the arms of the Russians in return for a Soviet pledge to defend the Arab countries.

Authorities here discounted suggestions that the Arab countries might decide to attack Israel before it gets any further with its atomic development.

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP)—An automobile doing a police-estimated 110 miles an hour hit a sloping railroad crossing late Tuesday night with these results:

It turned three complete somersaults, landed on its wheels, hit a tree, skidded back on the pavement and came to rest, still upright, a block and a half away.

None of the six teen-agers suffered a scratch.

Sheriffs' Proposal Has Big Weakness

Another bill to place sheriffs on a salary basis, with the backing of the Georgia Sheriffs Association, will be introduced in the forthcoming session of the General Assembly.

Major weakness of the proposal as we understand it is its permissive feature. It would be up to the counties, after recommendations by county commissioners and approval of one grand jury, to put it into effect. The county commissions would hold the key.

A bill introduced at the last legislative session for sheriffs' salaries was kayoed by the county commissioners, probably wisely. It would have removed by legislative act their control over sheriffs' operating expenses. Since the commissioners must find ways to finance their counties, the objection was valid.

Ending the fee system for law enforcement officials is the only way to end speed traps and other abuses in the system. Salaries for sheriffs would be an important start.

But the compromise proposal leaves it up to the county commissioners. In other words, while it provides a means for ending the fee system, it would not necessarily end it. While we're about it, let's make it mandatory.

Every Action Has Equal And Opposite Reaction

Periodically, opponents of crime want to abolish the Fifth amendment without thinking how they themselves are protected from persecution by it.

That is why so much depends on the judgment of our grand juries and courts now that Solicitor Paul Webb's office has seized some stuff from newsstands. There is a law against obscenity. The judgment of what is obscene ought to be made by due process, and not in the mind of some lay censor. And as long as those with legal powers use careful judgment to protect the acceptable while removing the offensive, then the law serves to ban censorship while also banning obscenity.

Such Cooperation Offers Wiser Course for All

Metropolitan Atlanta's Community Chest territory is growing. The three-county area of Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb next year will be expanded to embrace a fourth county, Clayton.

The announcement again illustrates the interdependence of the metropolitan area's cities and counties. Several thousand Clayton residents work in Atlanta, where many of the larger firms have adopted payroll giving plans to support local services. It will facilitate such giving while giving Clayton the benefit of Atlanta's huge organization and experience in community services.

This interdependence of the metropolitan area extends into all fields. Central Atlanta's health and problems are the concern of all persons who live in the area just as Atlanta must be concerned, too, with the problems of local development in surrounding areas.

There is constant and growing need for long-range, coordinated planning as is exhibited in the decision by Clayton to join the Metropolitan Community Chest. Cooperation instead of tugs-of-war is the wiser course for all.

Duncan and Pilcher Are Undersecretary Caliber

It would be a deserved honor for the South to have a Georgian appointed undersecretary of agriculture and we urge President-elect Kennedy to follow his inclination and name one.

Rep. J. L. Pilcher and John Duncan both have been suggested in connection with the job. We can heartily recommend either one of them to the President-elect.

Mr. Pilcher is an able congressman. Mr. Duncan has done a noteworthy job as president of the Georgia Farm Bureau. Mr. Kennedy has no better men to choose from in selecting the undersecretary to work with his secretary of agriculture, Orville Freeman of Minnesota.

Soviets Cut Payroll But Pay Stays the Same

Russia has announced a cut of her expenditure on armed forces from 12.9 per cent of the 1960 budget to 11.9 per cent of the 1961 budget.

This drop of 1 per cent follows an announced reduction of 1.2 million men in the Soviet armed services.

This seems a modest reduction indeed when the Soviet armed forces have assertedly lost so many men. Let us hope the American cutback in forces and families abroad will save more money, proportionately, than this.

Of course the new Soviet budget increases money for science by 15.6 per cent over 1960. Concealed somewhere in these unrelated figures is the Soviet appropriation for missile and space research. And the Soviets' announced estimate of a 9 per cent increase in 1961 national income makes it quite important that our defense establishment not be lulled into believing Russia is disarming.

JFK's Twin Problems: Recession and Growth

One can only hope that the government's forecast of a 13 per cent drop in auto production next year proves to be wrong. Such a decline would indeed deal a severe jolt to the entire economy, since about one out of seven people in this country makes his living in some aspects of the automotive industry.

It becomes clear, however, that President-elect Kennedy's most immediate and pressing problem is the decline in the economy and the growing level of unemployment. It is further complicated by our serious balance-of-payments outlook which inhibits government action to stimulate the economy.

Most observers predict the recession will be of short duration and of moderate intensity, ending in the last half of 1961. Rising government expenditures and built-in stabilizers, without massive increases in government spending, are expected to do the trick. If this fails, a temporary tax cut is being recommended together with a long-range reform of tax laws.

Kennedy's pledge to stimulate the rate of national economic growth contains the promise of ultimate solution. The truth is we have been growing at a rate so slow we have been unable to absorb additions to our labor force and to fully utilize our national resources. We have fallen into another recession before fully recovering from the 1957-58 decline.

But before tackling permanent solutions such as tax reform, the Kennedy administration must take steps to reassure the country that a major recession will not be allowed.

There's Bitter Irony in Two-Unit Government

Mr. Bill Harrell
The Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.

I too came from a two-unit county but if I have a choice between the people from where the pine trees grow thickest and the likes of you . . . electing our public officials . . . I would favor widening the county-unit gap rather than equalizing it. If it is disfranchise Fulton County or disfranchise Georgia—I'll take Georgia.

Gerald A. Tipton,
Union City, Ga.

Reply:

Pine trees are beautiful and I have some wonderful friends in sections of Georgia where the stately pines grow the thickest.

But because they have pines and I have none does that mean their vote should count several times as much as mine?

It is not a question of disfranchising Fulton County. Nor is it a question of disfranchising the rest of Georgia.

The guts of the issue is whether or not every eligible voter in Georgia shall have the same voice at the ballot box.

Two-unit state government is a Georgia tradition and tradition is good—in its place. But where has government by minority gotten us?

It has brought corruption. It has built roads and highways that compare shamefully with those of our sister states. It has fostered an economy more geared to that of several decades ago than to the present and future.

The entire state has been hurt by the county unit system. But the irony of it—an irony which every Georgian by now should recognize whether he likes it or not and I include myself among those who don't relish it—is that two-unit counties are the ones feeling the financial pinch the most under our antiquated system.—BILL HARRELL.

Oversimplify or Overcomplicate?

Youth oversimplifies. But when adults overcomplicate, they're asking for it. A group of 96 Tulane University students in New Orleans are circulating a blunt statement entitled "Tulanians Dissent." It stands in icy contrast to the hot evasions of the Louisiana legislature during the New Orleans school ordeal.

"The public affairs of the state have taken on an aura of unreality which, by comparison, makes Alice in Wonderland appear stark realism," the students say. Their dissent differs from so much coming out of Louisiana that we condense it here:

"The governor and the legislature reveal themselves masters of Orwellian doublespeak—to hate the Negro is to love him; to discriminate against the Negro is to accord him equality; peaceful protest includes the hurling of rocks and eggs, telephone harassment, rioting in the streets and constant threats of violence; both major political parties, both presidential candidates and the federal judiciary are Communist-inspired and the national capitol is seething with subversion; teachers who obey federal court orders are to be investigated for subversion and disloyalty; the press call peaceful protest criminal mischief and rampant vandalism peaceful protest. In such an atmosphere one feels impelled to succumb to the general irrationalism. . . .

"And at the center of the discord are the politicos, at once the instigators and the beneficiaries of the public convulsions. . . .

"The legislature sessions are almost wholly occupied by a parade of politicians before the microphones, denouncing all moderation as subversion, castigating reason as communism, and vowing undying support to 'our Southern way of life'—including open and mandatory racial discrimination and the accompanying exploitation of poor white and Negro alike . . .

"And most ironical of all, it is now proposed that the state sales tax be increased by one per cent to finance the continued opposition to the inevitable. The people of the state are asked to subject themselves to a painfully regressive tax measure in order to enable the politicians to completely destroy the education system which holds the only hope of enlightenment for the great mass of the people.

"Does history record a more bitter satire? This is the dilemma which Louisiana faces—the impossible conflict of reason and unreason."

Some adults in Louisiana may say these Tulane whippersnappers don't understand the difficulties. But one can conclude from actions to date that they understand them a good deal better than the adults in the Louisiana Legislature. Georgia, to her credit, has not left it so much to her youth to muster the courage to face these difficulties.

U.S. Ambassadors: Amateurs vs Pros

WASHINGTON—Two important but secondary issues seem to be dominating the discussion here on the new men who should be nominated to head the U.S. diplomatic missions abroad.

These are, first, whether the new ambassadors should have a fluent knowledge of the language of the countries to which they are sent, and, second, whether they should be professional diplomats or amateurs.

In some countries, of course, knowledge of the language is vital. The French, for example, are extremely conscious of the fact that French was the language of diplomacy in the 18th and 19th Centuries, and sending a U.S. ambassador to Paris who cannot speak French is like inviting the French cabinet to lunch and serving them Metrecal.

Nevertheless, English is increasingly becoming the diplomatic language of the world today, and outside of the fashionable capitals of Western Europe, professional foreign service officers with a working knowledge of the local language are increasingly serving as the nation's chief diplomatic officers.

For example, of the 99 U.S. diplomatic missions abroad, 70 are now headed by professional career officers. There are nine vacancies, and 20 (a new low) are non-career or political appointees.

Accordingly, the problem before Sen. Kennedy is not primarily whether to pick professional diplomats who can speak foreign languages, or amateur diplomats who cannot, but how to select the most effective ambassadors of political, financial, professional or amateur standing.

Western European foreign policy is now in one of its very personal phases. The politicians have taken over from the diplomats. As Adenauer, De Gaulle, and Macmillan have assumed command of foreign policy, the professional diplomats and even the foreign ministers have declined in influence.

In West Germany, a personal knowledge of Chancellor Adenauer and of international economics may be more important in dealing with the Berlin problem and the American balance of payments problem than a knowledge of German or a professional standing in the foreign service.

Each country is a separate problem. President de Gaulle in France, for example, is not as available to foreign diplomats as is Adenauer in Germany or Macmillan in Britain. In Russia, professional experience and knowledge of the Russian mind and the Russian language are essential.

Thus the issue is not language alone or professional experience alone, or money alone. Money is important only in the sense of giving the president-elect freedom to choose the best ambassadors from the foreign service, the universities, from business or anywhere else in American life.

2 Big Headaches: Laos and Congo

PARIS—In his temporary State department quarters Dean Rusk is finding a lot of permanent problems. These are the world headaches that transcend either the amassed briefing books placed at the secretary-designate's disposal or the lists of ambassadorial posts to be filled. Of these headaches, currently the most perplexing are the crises in Laos and the Congo.

The Laotian situation is wholly paradoxical. Nobody seems to know precisely what is happening.

All we know—because we have photographic evidence—is that while leftists briefly controlled Vientiane, Soviet planes airlifted artillery and ammunition to them.

We are starting to match this and help our own friends. The "provisional government" has asked for resumption of the military aid we cut off Nov. 30 at Vientiane's request. But the confusion continues.

Laos is under SEATO protection although not in the alliance. But SEATO cannot act unless there is "proof" of foreign invasion and the recognized government asks for aid. However, there is only a "provisional" government. No formal government is considered installed until approved by the National Assembly—which hasn't met—and blessed in a particular temple.

Laos leads like an arrow into the heart of southeast Asia. Strategically we cannot afford to see it slip behind the Iron Curtain. Likewise, the Congo lies right in the heart of Africa and the problem of ending the trouble there is, if anything, worse.

The Congo, which has no natural frontiers or ethnographic unity, is fragmenting into tribal states. The United Nations, whose assistance started off so wonderfully, is increasingly crippled by discord among its members.

Its white troops are suffering racial indignities from black troublemakers. Detachments from Guinea, Ghana and the U.A.R. have been technically withdrawn from U.N. command but haven't left—although we'd be happy to provide the necessary aircraft. Nobody knows just what they're doing now or why.

We can't allow Laos to slip away because of the profound repercussions this would produce in SEATO. And we can't allow the Congo to dissolve into a welter of jungle wars. Russia would whisk back its "technicians" and create a rump satellite in that country's eastern province.

Therefore Rusk has some disagreeable reading in the briefing books made available by Secretary Herter. And by the time he has finished his refresher course the situation will again have changed—probably for the worse.

Pulse of the Public

'The Hope for Atlanta and the South Rests With the Men and Women in the Middle'

Atlanta—I read with sincere appreciation your editorial in the Dec. 14 issue of The Constitution. I too have been concerned about the silence of moderate voices in the community, who by default have given the initiative in the growing crisis facing us to those who seek to have their views implemented by means of their own choosing and with seeming unconcern for the larger community in which they live.

On one hand we have the segregationist groups who through patently irresponsible statements generate and inflame hatred among a segment of the community, but who follow them by pious disavowals of responsibility when an incident such as the recent bombing occurs. On the other hand we have the integrationist groups who through so-called "non-violent" protests, seek to have the community recognize privileges denied them by local laws and custom.

The average intelligent citizen and churchman recognizes full well the hatred and evil which is behind statements heard recently, i.e. "burn the schools"; but fearing reprisal and intimidation, he usually remains silent. He also recognizes the inherent justice of some of the demands made by Negroes for greater opportunities to participate in the life of our community. But again, disturbed by possible repercussions and the relativities of a situation in which there is no "right" answer, he continues to be silent.

Most of us deplore the words and actions of those who argue for white supremacy at all costs, because the advocates of such a policy often openly advocate violence and lawlessness if necessary to accomplish the end they seek. The Negro demonstrations present us with a different problem, however. They are termed non-violent and have as their goal the removal of barriers between the races, but too often, as you mentioned, the end result is the arousal of more hatred and violence and the alienation of people who had recognized that some of their demands were just ones.

A sensitive citizen who has been reared in a culture which claims to be Christian, tends to accept at face value the sit-in and kneel-in demonstrator's claim that the non-violent approach is a better and more acceptable way of protest than violence and mob rule. Nevertheless, there is a feeling of uneasiness and resentment aroused in us when these demonstrations occur. Those who support the sit-ins and kneel-ins say that this feeling is present because we are still suffering from prejudice. I feel, however, that there is a deeper and more valid reason for this uncomfortable feeling.

The Negro protests started because the Negroes felt resentment against being treated as inferiors. My belief is that the resentment which is now aroused in us by their activities is because we are being looked upon as if we are their inferiors. "The churches are segregated; this should not be. Therefore, since we are better Christians than you who claim to be, we are going to do for you what you are unable to do for yourselves." This posture of self-righteous condescension is enough to make anyone resentful. And this self-righteousness—this attitude of being above the law and playing God with the welfare of a whole community is to me the fatal weakness of their position, especially with regard to the sit-in demonstrations.

It is in fact the same fallacy inherent in the attitude of the extreme segregationist.

This attitude was evident in the television debate in which Dr. Martin Luther King participated. His demeanor was at its best aloofness and at its worst superciliousness. When questioned in detail about whether the protests would stop if the Supreme Court ruled the no-trespass law valid, he at first evaded and then admitted in effect that such a decision would be unjust and therefore not binding on those who disagreed with it.

Such seems to be the inevitable fate of religious protest movements—eventually their concept of justice and of right becomes identified with God's will and therefore they become a law unto themselves. Such religious fanaticism, whether in segregationists or integrationists, is the breeding ground of totalitarianism in whatever shape it may eventually take.

The myopia of such groups is in thinking that absolute justice and righteousness is a possibility within the ambiguities and relativities of a fallen world—that such justice and righteousness can be a political reality. It never has been this way and it never will. The Negro demonstrators take their doctrine from Gandhi and seem to be unaware, as he and his followers were, that their protest is only a possibility because of the structures of law and responsible authority which keep them from being torn apart by their adversaries.

It is time that more credit and support be given to people exercising responsible authority, who sensitively, sincerely and painfully are trying to work towards a measure of justice in a diverse society and at the same time preserve order in the common good . . . people who live daily with the awareness that this world offers us few "right" or "wrong" decisions . . . that most often we must settle for the lesser of two evils. Those who shout for ultimates from whatever direction or color are of little help in resolving the dilemmas which face us.

If there is hope for Atlanta and the South, it rests with the men and women who see themselves in the middle, who are responsible enough to work within the limits of the giveness of our situation, and who have the courage to make decisions, knowing that they are not absolutely right, but accepting this fact as a part of what it takes to be a man and to live in a real world.

The voices of reconciliation are for the most part silent; communication between responsible men of both races has broken down. We are uneasy and frightened as we live from day to day on the edge of imagined or real chaos. My hope and prayer is that there are those among us who will accept the challenge to be ministers of reconciliation and to act responsibly while there is yet time.

I suggest the so-called intelligent citizen who did not have the fortitude, better known as "guts," to sign his or her name to the article, obtain a copy of the Atlanta Daily World (Negro newspaper), dated Dec. 3, 1960, and see what some members of the NAACP are advocating.

He Was Reading About the Kids And He Got This Idea . . .

There was the most devilish gleam in the fellow's eye as he began to tell his story. He smiled a little, then laughed aloud. "I know I shouldn't have done it. But, by God, it was one way to do a little something at Christmas." The idea came to him one night at work. "I was reading about the kids who wouldn't have anything much under the tree. For that matter, they wouldn't even have a tree. That's how it started, with the kids, but I guess I improved on the game as I went along."

Stealing is about the best you can call it.

The young man worked as a shipping clerk in a business big in Atlanta and the South. The mail order department is large, accounting for much merchandise. Out of it yearly is shipped millions and millions of dollars worth of goods.

"It takes brains to beat this outfit, too," said the confessed Christmas conspirator.

But beat it he did.

Now another but. "But never anything for myself. Only for others."

Clearing his conscience, and making me coconspirator, he went back to Christmas and the kids.

"That's what started it. I looked at all these things in the stockrooms. Row after row. Toys of all kinds. Then we would walk along, filling orders. I'd begin one. If it happened to be a small order I'd think maybe it was from real poor folks. If they wanted one ball, I'd put in two. I'd also add a doll and a dress or two. Maybe a gun or a tea set.

"I don't know the parents' reaction when they got these extras, but few came back, if any. More kids, I thought, would be happy.

"Then I began getting names of kids who wouldn't be getting anything. I'd fix up a special box there in the stockroom; I'd learned how to get them by and mailed to the address I'd picked. This was better. Here were children getting things they had no other way of getting.

"It got so I was taking prizes in the boxes. I tried to figure out a typical family. Say five persons. I'd put something in for the man, something for the mother and finish filling it with toys and candy for the kids.

"In other boxes I would put in things that old persons—say an old lady and an old man—could use. I'd ask around, or hear someone speaking about people like this, and away the packages would go.

Conscience copped out on the cheerful giver. He cut it out and quit this part-time job.

"I didn't take so much as it might sound. Toys and candy for kids; hairbrush and comb sets for women; shirts, gloves, socks for a father; pipes and slippers for old men; maybe a bathrobe went to some older ladies.

"I would like to see the eyes of some of these persons when they open their unexpected gifts on the morning of Dec. 25."

Oh yes, said the sinner with a smile. "I put 'Don't Open Till Christmas' on all of them."

What he was wanting me to say that he had done right. I didn't say that. But I did say I, too, would like to see some of the faces of the kids and the old folks.

True Meaning of Christmas Provides Courage That Lasts

The most thrilling day of all the year for me is Christmas. A lot of people seem to be worried about the commercial emphasis that we give to Christmas. This does not distress me as long as we do not neglect the spiritual significance of Christmas. I like to help decorate the tree. It is a thrill to watch the happy faces of little children as they awake on Christmas morning. I enjoy observing the look of gladness expressed on the faces of adults when they open their gifts.

To spend some time shopping for others helps us to tune the harsh notes of selfishness and gives fresh meaning to the words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35)

The tragedy of this holy season comes when we are unable to see beyond the glowing Christmas tree with its exquisite trimmings and beautifully wrapped packages.

I know a family for whom Christmas will have little spiritual significance. They have just about everything money can buy and up to now they have failed to discover that Christmas means more than exchanging gifts. Therefore, when the gifts are unwrapped, Christmas for them will end.

I know another man who looks for his Christmas spirit in a bottle. If he follows his usual custom, he will celebrate the Lord's birthday in a drunken stupor. After a painful hangover. Christmas for him will be over.

I was speaking to a civic club in another state a few years ago just before Christmas. I casually mentioned the fact that I knew a little boy who wanted a bicycle for Christmas but due to the father's illness, he would not get one. Before I left that night I had the offer of eight bicycles. I accepted a bicycle from one man and delivered it to the home of the little lad on Christmas eve.

Several weeks later the man who gave the bicycle called me. "I just want to thank you for giving me the opportunity to do something that has brought me so much joy." The following November, he called me again. "Find me a family," he said, "with several children. I want to give them toys for Christmas." His Christmas was more meaningful, not because he received more but because he gave more.

When we experience Christmas, we find the magic ingredient that will last all the year. It provides courage for the troubles of March, inspiration for the disappointments of August and the assurance of God's love and power during the fears of February. The true meaning of Christmas speaks a language that can be heard around the world all during the year.

It Sounded Like She'd Have To Turn Her Good Friend In

A good friend of mine who lives in what we call "The Projeck," which is to say a low-rent, government subsidized housing development, called by to give me a report on her life and times and it was as good as a visit from Santa Claus. "Sugar Pie," she said, "I'm having me one big Christmas! Don't say nothing about it—I wouldn't want to upset The Relief—but I reckon I'm on more lists this year than I've been in my whole life put together! You know, they try to fix it so you're only on one list and nobody gets too much and nobody gets left out. But this year—through a pure-dee miracle, I reckon—me and mine has been give a sight of stuff!"

At first I had a queasy feeling that I shouldn't hear any more. I'd be compelled to turn her in to some agency or other. But her face was so bright and happy and the urge to hear more was stronger than my impulse to rat on her. So I egged her on.

"Tell me," I begged, "what has happened?"

She sighed blissfully.

"Before God," she said piously, "it's been a regular visitation. Church ladies, missionaries, The Relief, them Empty Stockings, and I don't know what all in the way of club folks!"

"Mercy," I said, impressed. "You must be rolling in goodies!"

"We set up half the night sorting over our stuff and parceling it out," she said smugly. "I got one box of grits left in the house but I never had so much fun in my life!"

Even the toys she got for her children have been given away—by the children themselves. Food baskets have been broken up and distributed here and there among her friends and neighbors who weren't on any list, much less the beneficiaries of such opulence. Through some error a man's suit came to her totally feminine household and this added to her conviction that a "pure-dee" Christmas miracle was working in her behalf.

"Them club ladies gets in a hurry," she explained indulgently. "So much to do and all and sometimes they don't go over the stuff they give you too good. Ain't a one of us can wear a size 40 suit of clothes but you know," . . . she giggled happily . . . "it come in handy as a gift. I got a boy friend."

It was such a joyful picture we sat marvelling together at her amazing largesse — food, clothing and love.

"But why," I asked, "did you let the children give away their toys? Won't they feel terrible on Christmas morning?"

"If they do I ain't raised them worth a hurrah," she said with some spirit. "All they lives they been receiving. This year they had a chance to give. It ain't right to raise a young'un who can never say, 'I done without for somebody else.' Doing without for no cause is bad. But doing without for somebody else — you know yourself that's a he'p to a person."

Decatur Man Killed In Head-On Crash

Mother, 2 Girls Injured In Collision on Oakdale Road

Charles E. Carter, 46, of 2854 McAfee Rd., Decatur, died shortly after being admitted to Grady Hospital Wednesday following a head-on crash on Oakdale Rd., NE. Three others persons were injured.

An automobile driven by Mr. Carter crossed the center line in the 500 block of Oakdale Road and collided with an auto driven by Mrs. Barbara Ann Smith, of 55 Atlanta Ave., SE, Patrolman S. E. Nicholas said.

Mrs. Smith, her daughter, Teresa Ann Jenkins, 5, and Mrs. Smith's sister, Wanda Patricia Taylor, 17, of 207 Palatka St., SE, were treated at Grady Hospital for lacerations and bruises.

Nicholas said Mrs. Smith told him she saw the car approaching on Oakdale road and the driver appeared to become rigid as the machine veered across the center line.

Mr. Carter, a printer, was a native Atlantan.

He was a member of Ousley Methodist Church, where funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Troyce Johnson of Jasper, Ala., a daughter, Miss Juanita Carter, Atlanta; mother, Mrs. C. E. Carter, Atlanta; two sisters, Mrs. Miles Kerley, Atlanta, and Mrs. G. L. Ferguson, Marietta; and brother, T. S. Carter, Atlanta.

6 Airlines To Get Space In Terminal

Final allocation of space for six major airlines in the city's $22.5 million airport terminal was under way Wednesday.

Ald. Jesse Draper, chairman of the aldermanic board's aviation committee, said preliminary lease agreements will be arranged between the city and airline representatives. Each operating airline will pay its proportionate share of maintenance and operational costs.

Delta, Eastern, Southern, Capital, Trans World and Northwest Orient lines are seeking space in the new terminal. Negotiations will be submitted to Draper's committee for sanction.

Revenue from lease agreements totaled $163,859 in 1959 and the city collected $229,952 in landing fees.

Warning to Pigeons: Don't Trust Those Pills

Constitution State News Service

DUBLIN—Warning to the pigeons that perch on the eaves of the Laurens County courthouse:

Some people—the Dublin City Council—are thinking about feeding you pigeons tranquilizing pills. But if you're wise birds, you'll have no part of it.

A taste of those pills will be the first step toward becoming a piece of pigeon pie.

The council has done nothing definite yet.

But Alderman James Perry proposed the tranquilizers at the last meeting of the City Council. He said the pills would make the soberest pigeon feel mighty woozy. In fact, he said the birds would be falling like flies.

After that, city employes would go around gathering up the tranquilized birds. And after that, well —as Mayor Felton Pierce told a man—"We want you to come down and eat some pigeon with us."

This war on the birds was prompted by members of the First Baptist Church across from the courthouse. The Baptists claim the pigeons are causing consternation among churchgoers. The people at the courthouse also are complaining.

Joint Panels Ask Testing Of Teachers

An examination to prove competence should be given persons applying for teaching certificates in Georgia, according to recommendations of the General Assembly's joint committees on teacher education.

Such a test of teacher competence should be started "if the teaching profession is to be upgraded and is to command more professional recognition," the legislature reported.

The test should be given when teachers enter the profession, rather than later to determine if they are competent to do the job they are doing, the report says.

The joint committees, which began studies last summer and heard some 56 witnesses, are headed by Sen. Wallace L. Jernigan of Homerville, Rep. J. Battle Hall of Rome and Rep. Chappelle Matthews of Athens.

Matthews said the committees did not decide what test teacher applicants should take but added that the national teacher examination prepared by the Education Testing Service of Princeton, N.J., was discussed.

Under present procedure, applicants apply for certification at the State Department of Education. In most cases they need only the recommendation of a dean of a Georgia education school to qualify.

Hall said the test would apply only to new applicants.

Sit-Ins Stop Food Service at 3 Lenox Stores

Eating facilities in three Lenox Square stores were closed Wednesday when Negroes attempted to be served.

The facilities were the Brer Fox and Magnolia rooms at Rich's and the lunch counters at Walgreen's and Kresge's.

Negro demonstrators, some 35 in all, apparently included adults as well as students. There were no arrests and no reported incidents.

Wild Car Carries Pedestrian 30 Feet

Constitution State News Service

DALTON—A car driven by a 79-year-old woman lurched out of control at a busy Dalton intersection Wednesday, struck a pedestrian and damaged seven other cars before halting a block and a half away.

The pedestrian, Mrs. Martha Irene McGaha, 54, of Ringgold was carried about 30 feet on the fender of the car before she fell clear, Police Lt. John Grigsby said. Mrs. McGaha was treated for multiple injuries.

The driver of the rampaging car, Mrs. Rosa Freeman, 79, of Dalton, was admitted to the hospital with head and leg injuries. She was charged with reckless driving, officers said.

Lt. Grigsby, who was directing traffic, said Mrs. Freeman apparently tried to stop for a traffic light, but accelerated instead.

The car hit Mrs. McGaha, caromed off another car, sideswiped two others and then rammed into a row of four parked cars, Grisby said.

Premier Castro

Castro Cast As 1 of 3 Wise Men

HAVANA (AP)—The theme of Fidel Castro's revolution is being woven into the traditional Christmas pattern.

The display shows a manger where a peasant couple watch over a newborn babe. Cast in the roles of the three Wise Men are Castro, National Bank President Ernesto Guevara and the army chief, Juan Almeida. They represent agrarian reform, industrialization and the government's literacy campaign.

Looming from a background of Oriente Province hills are the faces of missing Maj. Camile Cienfueges and Antonio Maceo, a hero of Cuban independence. Overlooking the scene is Cuba's national hero, Jose Marti, with a huge star twinkling in his forehead.

Castro's bearded soldiers appear on Christmas cards.

U.S. Blasts Castro As Unbearable

By RUTHERFORD POATS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State department aimed a new verbal volley Wednesday at Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, charging that he has made life unbearable for the Cuban people and they are turning against him.

The bluntly worded statement was a reply to Castro's charge that the United States was implicated in sabotage of Havana's electric power. State department spokesman Lincoln White flatly denied the charge.

CASTRO BLASTED

"It is the Cuban government, not the United States government, that by its policies must bear the full responsibility for turning Cubans in all social classes against the present regime," he said.

"Acts of sabotage and other manifestations of dissatisfaction by the populace are not uncommon occurrences in police states.

"It is not surprising to receive reports that the Cuban people, driven by bitterness and frustration, have sought to display their disapproval of Castro's policies — policies which have suppressed their freedom, reduced the standard of living, damaged their economy, and in general have made life unbearable," White said.

THREAT MINIMIZED

The State department spokesman minimized Castro's threat to wage price warfare against nations which "cooperate with U. S. imperialism" by selling sugar to the United States to make up for the U.S. ban on Cuban sugar imports.

White said that actually Castro already is driving down world sugar prices. He cited as an example a recent sale of sugar by Poland to Britain for 2.7 cents a pound. The polish sugar is believed to have come from Cuba.

Castro has committed nearly 4 million tons of Cuba's 5.7 million ton estimated 1961 crop to the Communist bloc much of it under barter terms which brings the actual price below the present world market level of about three cents a pound.

LITTLE TO PUMP?

The rest of Cuba's crop can be sold to normal non-Communist buyers, leaving him little if any to stockpile for any future "dumping" on the market in reprisal against other sugar exporters friendly to the United States, State department economists said.

In any case, they said, Cuba as the world's biggest sugar exporter would be most hurt by a world price drop in sugar because its economy is dependent on sugar revenues.

Castro Purging Cuba High Court

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

HAVANA (AP)—In a move to sweep away the last legal obstacles to his revolution, Prime Minister Fidel Castro Wednesday decreed a shakeup of Cuba Supreme Court.

A new Castro decree temporarily suspends a law which had prevented the dismissal of magistrates. The decree authorizes a purge and reorganization of the court and empowers President Osvaldo Dorticos and the Cabinet to fire and reassign judges.

Within hours, the government issued a list of 13 magistrates being removed. They include some already in asylum at embassies here or in exile—such as Supreme Court President Emilio Menendez and magistrates Jose Morell Romero and Francisco Alabau Trelles.

Menendez, who had been in the Argentine Embassy here for a month, flew to Argentina two days ago.

In effect, the decree permits Castro to assume control of Cuba's highest appeals court. The court repeatedly has rebuffed the government in appeals cases about indemnities due owners of seized property.

Once before, Castro had tried to reform the judiciary. Immediately following the revolution, he suspended for 60 days the same law that prohibits removing magistrates. But Manuel Urrutia, then the Cuban president, blocked his efforts to purge the judges.

Castro now will be able to get at two kinds of magistrates—those he considers insufficiently adapted to his revolution and those appointed by ex-President Fulgencio Batista.

The Cabinet approved the judicial reform decree. It also endorsed another decree that establishes the scale of Christmas bonuses for workers in nationalized and privately owned businesses.

The way that decree reads, it appears bonuses will be paid to workers out of their own retirement and pension funds. The decree says the government-controlled Bank of Social Securities is authorized to lend sums where necessary to pay bonuses. The same bank handles all private and state retirement and pension funds.

With private industry virtually wiped out, the government is the nation's biggest employer. The government press estimates bonus payments will total about 50 million pesos—$50 million.

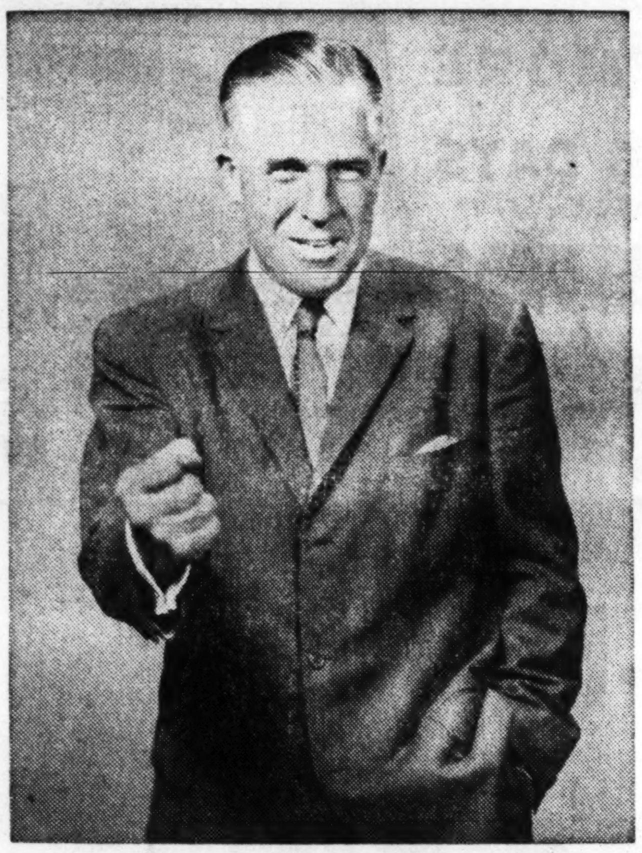
ANNOUNCING PAYMENTS TO RAMBLER BUYERS AS RAMBLER'S SALES VOLUME INCREASES

Why You Should Join Rambler's New Crusade For Adequate Progress Sharing With Customers



GEORGE ROMNEY
President, American Motors Corporation

"I believe participation by all consumers in economic progress is absolutely necessary in meeting the nation's economic needs."

Rambler's rise out of nowhere to a top position in car registrations has put us in position to undertake a new Rambler crusade. This program, which could provide greater individual and national benefits than any we've yet undertaken, calls for customer progress sharing.

As volume goes up, costs come down. So, sharing economies that would result from a 50% Rambler sales gain over last year for the period December through March could provide payments to customers of $18,698,062.

But, before presenting Rambler's new crusade, let me review some highlights of the first one.

When we forged our basic Rambler concepts, U.S. cars were in a size, horsepower and styling-change race that cost the car buyer money. So, we developed the compact, economical, modernly engineered Rambler.

CONSUMER BENEFITS FROM LOWER PRICES

Because of low volume, we had to price our first Rambler Americans about equal with Chevrolet and Ford, traditionally "lowest priced."

As our output and economies increased, we shared the resulting economic advantages with Rambler customers. Despite inflation, we kept prices low. We also concentrated on durability and quality. By continuing to do this, we are today producing Rambler Americans that are superior to Chevrolet and Ford in modern engineering. Too, Rambler excels in trouble-free operation, as shown by trade surveys made by others.

What has this done? It has increased our sales—made us a vigorous new competitive factor, compelling all our competitors to introduce compact cars. Their compact cars unquestionably are better buys than their big cars, because their big cars don't have the advanced engineering that has gone into their compacts and their compacts are more sensible and valuable units of transportation.

Despite these moves to meet Rambler competition, Rambler American models are now priced not only below competitive big cars but below the new economy compacts of the Big Three as well.

Prices for Rambler, Ford, and Chevrolet

Chart based on manufacturers' suggested factory-delivered prices. Rambler prices for 1951, 1952 and 1953 adjusted, where necessary, to allow for differences in body style and standard equipment to keep comparisons comparable.

Top Quality—Lowest Price of All

Lowest-Priced 2-Door Sedans	1961 Price	Rambler Saves You
Rambler American	$1845
Falcon	1912	$67
Corvair	1920	75
Lark	1935	90
Valiant	1953	108
Comet	1998	153
Lancer	2007	162

Based on manufacturers' suggested factory-delivered prices. State and local taxes, if any, optional equipment, extra.

In addition, Ramblers provide customers several exclusive trouble-free engineering advances such as the Rambler acidproof and rustproof Ceramic-Armored muffler and tailpipe.

The Rambler line includes three basic sizes of compact cars—the Rambler American, the Rambler Classic and the Ambassador, the latter two developed after the original American series.

RAMBLER SALES SOAR

In two years, Rambler's per cent of the car market has more than doubled. For each of the last 38 straight months, Rambler sales have established a new record for that month. We want to continue this growth by serving you even better.

THE NEW RAMBLER CRUSADE

Our new Rambler crusade, like our compact crusade, is based on our sharing Rambler progress with car buyers.

We believe the new Rambler crusade has timely significance. Our country currently is experiencing a mild economic slowdown. Rising foreign competition and the weakness of the dollar are causing national concern. Our larger automobile competitors are greatly increasing foreign investment and considering partial manufacture and importation of cars for the U.S. market from abroad. There is a general profit squeeze. Unemployment is rising.

We believe the greatest single economic cause of these trends is failure to adequately share economic progress with ALL consumers. Relatively too much of the fruit of industrial effort has been going to a few well organized economic groups.

CUSTOMERS TO SHARE RAMBLER PROGRESS

We decided there was something we could do. We decided to share future progress with ALL customers who take delivery of a new Rambler or new Metropolitan between December 1, 1960, and March 31, 1961, from an authorized Rambler dealer (excluding governmental sales). We will give such Rambler and Metropolitan buyers most of the benefit of additional cost reduction resulting from further increases in Rambler sales volume.

This can mean a sharing with Rambler buyers during the 4-month period of government savings bonds (Series E) with a maturity value from $3,679,850 (10% sales increase), to $24,930,750 (50% increase). See chart for details.

We expect thereby to increase the number of loyal Rambler owners. Experience proves they are our best customers. They also are repeat customers.

Should your joining our crusade push our sales increase even higher than 50%, we will make proportionately higher refunds.

BOTH CUSTOMERS AND AMERICAN MOTORS GAIN

You have everything to gain and nothing to lose by joining this crusade. The same is true for us.

You can't lose because our Rambler cars are better than the big cars and the best of the compacts. Ramblers are more trouble-free, more useful and lower priced.

You make your regular deal in the regular way for a new Rambler. You then are in a position to share proportionately in the economies and profits of higher sales by Rambler realized in December, 1960, and the first three months of 1961.

We gain by acquiring more Rambler owners, which will make our growing Rambler market even larger in the future. Again, that's because Rambler owners become Rambler salesmen and Rambler repeat buyers.

Ask your neighbor about his Rambler, then join the Rambler crusade. Join us in focusing the nation's attention on the essentiality of equitably sharing economic progress with ALL consumers if the WHOLE NATION is to prosper.

George Romney

P.S. Some may say one company can't do much about national problems as big and complex as those cited above. Well, that's what the skeptics and cynics said about our first Rambler crusade. Let's remember, every great thing is born small. If this new Rambler crusade is right, it can succeed and spread, just as the compact car concept already has.

Mr. Romney's recent New York Press Conference on "Customer Sharing and the Nation's Economy" attracted nationwide notice. For complete text of his statements, write American Motors, Box 29, Detroit 32, Michigan.

HOW PAYMENTS TO BUYERS WILL BE DETERMINED IN AMERICAN MOTORS' CUSTOMER PROGRESS SHARING PROGRAM

		DECEMBER (Dec. sales)	JANUARY Dec.-Jan. total)	FEBRUARY (Dec.-Jan.-Feb. total)	MARCH (4-month total)
40%	$100	42,231	91,159	130,796	182,883
30%	$ 75	39,214	84,648	121,453	169,820
20%	$ 50	36,198	78,136	112,111	156,757

NOTE: In all cases, "BUYER(S)" means a person who actually takes delivery, not places an order.

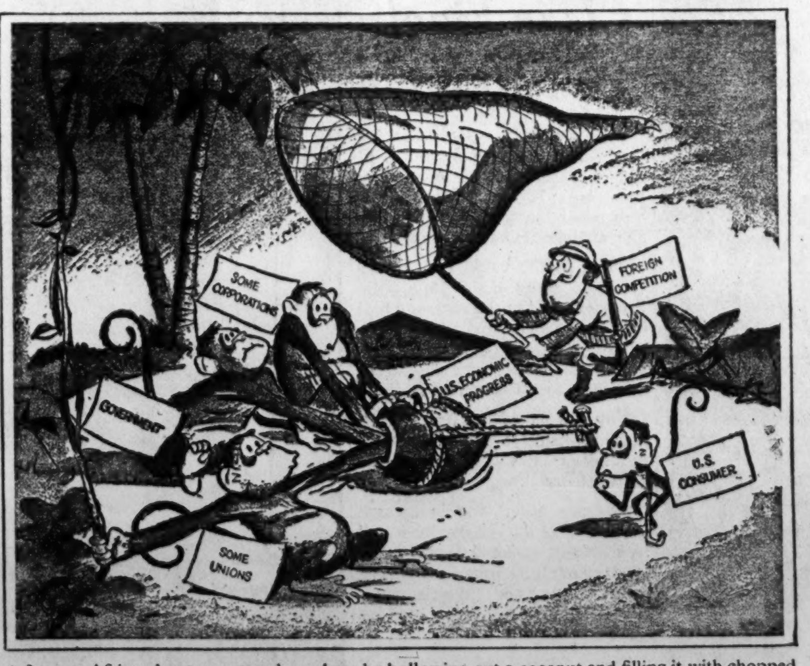
WHY IT WILL PAY YOU TO BUY NOW. This unique program is cumulative and retroactive. Early buyers can get more, but never less bonds, than buyers in succeeding months. Your Rambler dealer will be happy to give you the complete details of the plan but here is a quick example of how it works and keeps on working for you:

If December Rambler deliveries increase 20% over last December, December buyers of new Ramblers or Metropolitans will receive $50 bonds. As the four-month period progresses, additional bonds will be mailed to the December buyers each time the cumulative sales reach a higher bond payment sales level.

Also, if sales increase for the four-month period exceeds 50%, proportionate additional payments will be made to all buyers during any of the four-months.



A famous African hunter captured monkeys by hollowing out a coconut and filling it with chopped coconut meat. The monkeys would grasp a fistful of meat and, unwilling to let any of it go, could not withdraw their paws. As a result, they were easy victims . . . The U.S. consumer is not yet as scrawny as shown, but unless there is a more equitable division of the productivity increases, he will get that way. One of the three American groups must let go and set an example—or all will be captured and, along with the consumer, all will suffer.

Germans Iron Trade Treaty

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

BERLIN—Barring a last-minute hitch, an agreement on the resumption of East-West trade is imminent, authoritative sources said here Wednesday night.

Representatives of both sides were reported to be meeting in East Berlin late Wednesday night for final arrangements, following another session earlier in the day.

Felix von Eckardt, spokesman for the West German government, said in Bonn the agreement could be expected to be signed before Christmas.

In the new agreement, which is subject to approval by the two governments, both sides are reported to have made concessions.

West Germany, it is understood, is not insisting on a formal lifting by the Communists of their squeeze on West German entry to East Berlin. Instead, the West appears to be ready to accept Eastern assurances that the restrictions will not be put into practice in future.

East German Communists, on the other hand, are reported to have proposed an easing of controls on German goods traffic to and from Berlin.

The trade talks were opened early this month after Bonn gave notice to end the current trade agreement effective Dec. 31 in reprisal of Communist restrictions on Berlin. East German Communists have since threatened a stoppage of German and allied traffic unless the trade pact were renewed by Jan. 1.

Boy, 15, Saves 8 Children from Fire

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Robarge, were away when fire broke out early Wednesday in their home in this northern Vermont community.

Rejean leaped from a second story window and rushed to the barn. He came back with a ladder and placed it against the burning house.

He climbed it, went back into the house and rounded up his eight younger brothers and sisters.

One by one, the youngsters descended into the snow, barefooted and in their night clothes.

A nose count disclosed one small boy missing. Rejean reentered the now flaming home and rescued the youngster from a smoke-filled downstairs room.

He then mounted the eight children on a tractor and drove a mile to a neighbor's house.

No one was injured, but the house was destroyed. Cause of the fire was attributed to an over-heated wood stove in the basement.

42 Small Fires on Supercarrier Revealed by Officer at Inquiry

NEW YORK (UPI)—Forty-two small fires plagued construction on the supercarrier Constellation before it was gutted by a $75 million holocaust that killed 49 workmen Monday. A Navy lieutenant testified Wednesday at the opening of public hearings.

Lt. Vito R. Milano, assigned as a construction supervisor aboard the Navy's most advanced flattop, told a three-admiral board of inquiry that since he started his job last July he had witnessed "many, many small fires" aboard ship, most of them of the trash-fire variety.

The main blaze he attributed to an "improperly installed" fuel tank valve which allowed diesel fuel to spill on deck, but this part of his testimony was challenged by veteran pipefitter Solomon Freid, who said the valve had been knocked loose by a lift truck operating near by.

Secretary of the Navy William B. Franke had said earlier he found "nothing suspicious" about the blaze, which set back by about a year the Constellation's departure to defense duty in strategic Asian waters.

The hearing opened in an informal atmosphere in a Navy yard office while thousands of workmen returned to the fire-blackened carrier on orders to clean up and start over.

Franke, who reported on the fire to President Eisenhower Wednesday, promised in Washington he would "take another look" into the use of wooden walkways in scaffolding on ships under construction after seeing how the wood on the Constellation had helped feed the savage flames that broke out while more than 3,000 men were at work aboard the ship.

Milano said he had discovered the fuel tank leaking diesel oil "profusely," called for the fire department "as a precaution," and then rushed back to try to plug the leak, only to find flames coming from the deck below.

"Once the fire broke out, it became a real large fire—it grew large real fast," he said.

Chaplin Unsure Of Soviet Visit

Louisiana Officials Cited in Contempt

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Three federal judges slapped three top state officials with contempt citations Wednesday, a few minutes before the state's House of Representatives defeated a tax bill aimed at preserving segregated schools.

The federal tribunal also ordered New Orleans banks to release funds to pay the salaries of teachers and other personnel at two New Orleans elementary schools integrated by court order Nov. 14.

The citation set Friday, Jan. 13 as the date Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock, House Speaker Tom Jewell and State Education Supt. Shelby M. Jackson must show cause why they should not be held for contempt.

SALARY FREEZE CITED

U.S. Atty. M. Hepburn Many asked for the citations, contending the men were in contempt by refusing to pay the salaries of employes at two integrated schools, the William Frantz and McDonough No. 19.

The three judges also restrained the state from enforcing a new legislative action to fire the Orleans Parish School Board attorney, Samuel Rosenberg, and replace him with Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion.

The panel of jurists also restrained Louisiana Gov. Jimmie H. Davis from appointing a new school board for Orleans Parish to handle school finances.

BARS PACKING

This would stop Davis and other state officials from using legislation permitting them to appoint a five-member board to replace the present elected board.

The effect of the ruling on school finances is to make available to the school board immediately more than $1 million of the $3 million it needs by Dec. 31 to pay employes and suppliers.

The legislature has tied up school money because school board members complied with a federal court order that schools be integrated Nov. 14.

SALES TAX SETBACK

In Baton Rouge, Gov. Davis suffered a setback when the House turned down his proposal to boost the state sales tax by one cent. The vote was 65-36 in favor of the bill, but it needed 68, or a two-thirds majority, as a tax measure to pass. It will come up for a second, and final, vote at some future date.

The proposal would have raised $28 million to provide grants-in-aid for children enrolled in integrated schools and who want to go to segregated schools. Most of the state's newspapers opposed the bill and legislative opponents said

Ike Thanks GIs in Final Yule Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his last Christmas greeting to U. S. armed forces as their commander-in-chief, President Eisenhower also sends thanks to them on behalf of their fellow Americans.

Peace in the world is "the absolute necessity of our time," the President said in the message that will be broadcast over the world-wide facilities of the Armed Forces Radio Network on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

With the joy of the first Christmas, he said, "we cannot forget the perils of that time or the perils of our time."

"We are also living in an age of cruel and aggressive leaders," he continued, adding that Americans must stand firm to preserve their homes and liberties and make sacrifices when the need requires.

"You are already doing this," he told the armed forces.

"I am the spokesman of your fellow Americans as I say, all of us are grateful to you."

jubilant group congratulating and shaking hands with the two men.

THANKS JURORS

Griffin's statement began, "It is with the deepest feeling of humility before the people of Georgia that my wife and I have heard the decision of the grand jury. To each grand juror who listened patiently and long to sift the wheat of truth from the chaff of fabricated perjury I give my thanks."

In his statement he again charged that "state gestapo tactics" had been used against him. "Fortunately the people of Georgia will not long be burdened with this condition. . . ."

Shaw commented on the grand jury's decision:

"This is going to make a wonderful Christmas for me and my family. Naturally, they always believed in my innocence."

Copies of the proposed indictment alleged that Griffin, Shaw and Brinson conspired to defraud the state through purchase of $347,000 worth of steel buildings.

The proposed indictment alleged that E. Thurston Brown was the middle man in the sale of the buildings and that J. A. Reece of Clarksville, Tenn., was the supplier of the buildings.

During the final day of the hearing Griffin's attorney called as witnesses Judge Sam Boykin of Carroll County, Mrs. Griffin, Sheriff C. H. Strickland of Grady County, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher, Robert Arnold, chairman of the Board of Regents.

Car Strikes Woman on Way To Trolley

An Atlanta young woman was struck by a car Wednesday at the intersection of Peachtree and Ellis streets, NE.

Patrolman D. R. Arnold said they learned Miss Diane DuBose of 844 Piedmont Avenue, NE, started across Peachtree to catch a trolley when she saw a car crossing the intersection toward her.

She was treated at Grady for severe leg injuries, police said.

Arnold said the car was driven by Douglas Burns Fincannon, 23, of 522 East Temple Avenue, College Park. No charge was made against Fincannon.

Roswell Gilpatric

Text of Statement By Ex-Gov. Griffin

Following is the text of ex-Gov. Marvin Griffin's statement made after the Fulton County grand jury "no-billed" a proposed indictment on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the state:

It is with the deepest feeling of humility before the people of Georgia that my wife and I have heard the decision of the grand jury.

To each grand juror who listened patiently and long to sift the wheat of truth from the chaff of fabricated perjury I give my thanks.

Beyond the happiness and satisfaction which comes from my personal vindication from the most prolonged, vile and despicable conspiracy ever devised by a small group of mean men in consort with powerful and vicious foreign newspaper interests, there is the unbounded contentment which comes with the assurance that a basic and fundamental bulwark of America—the Grand Jury System—is still secure.

This is particularly true when it is realized there exists under the present governor, and the wilful men who manipulate him, a force of evil called the State Gestapo, which it is possible for them to unleash against any citizen of Georgia when the Governor's choler, or that of his manipulators, is disturbed.

Fortunately, the people of Georgia will not long be burdened with this condition and, likewise, must not long live under the fear that such a condition might be permanent, for it shall be driven out of the Capitol of Georgia.

I promised my good friends of Georgia to meet these conspirators at the courthouse. In fact, I invited them to come because I had full confidence in Georgia justice at the grass roots.

I have promised further to meet these conspirators at the crossroads and at the precincts of the militia districts. That I will still do under circumstances and conditions which the conspirators understand. When that day comes I will be there with the same humility I have always had before the sovereign people of Georgia.

The first thing my wife and I want to do now is to radio this good news to our son, out there over the Atlantic, flying a plane with the fleet, helping with thousands of other young men to protect our shores from an enemy from afar, and assure him that I am on the alert on the ramparts in Georgia for the enemy at home.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all Georgians and God Bless You.

MARVIN GRIFFIN.

N.Y. Attorney Gets No. 2 Defense Post

Bureau director-designate. They met to consider whether rising unemployment and prospective lower tax receipts threaten to throw the federal budget out of balance in the first year of the Kennedy administration.

The budget talks, held in the Kennedy ocean-side home here, also included the president-elect's special counsel, Theodore Sorensen; Elmer B. Staats, career budget official who will remain as deputy director; Myer Feldman, who will be deputy special White House counsel, and Professor Richard E. Neustadt, on leave from Columbia University to serve as a special assistant to Kennedy on the problems of governmental transition before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

As Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense-designate, moved to complete his defense establishment team, rumors continued to circulate that a high post would go to Paul H. Nize of Washington, former director of the State department's policy planning staff under President Harry Truman.

Nitze, who headed a group that made a special study of national security organization problems for Kennedy, reportedly is under consideration either for assistant secretary of defense for international affairs or for appointment as special assistant to the president for National Security Council affairs.

Gilpatric served as undersecretary of the Air Force during the Truman administration. Since then he has served on a number of defense study groups, including those of the Rockefeller Fund and the advisory panel of the joint congressional subcommittee. He served on two advisory committees for Kennedy, the one on national security organization and one on defense department reorganization.

Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, said the proposed appointment of former Gov. Coleman was suggested to Coleman at a conference in Jackson, Miss., on Monday by McNamara. Coleman remained loyal to the national Democratic ticket when the present Mississippi regime, headed by Gov. Ross Barnett, endorsed "unpledged electors" who cast their votes for Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia for president.

Other political jobs will be the subject of a long patronage conference Thursday between the senator and three of his top political advisers—John M. Bailey, the Connecticut state chairman who is scheduled to become Democratic national chairman; Lawrence F. O'Brien, director of organization for the Democratic National Committee, and R. Sargent Shriver of Chicago, Kennedy's brother-in-law and a key campaign adviser.

Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey, who headed the Democratic national voter registration drive, also is scheduled to confer with Kennedy Thursday.

Prisoner Schooling At Alto Is Urged

general supervision over instruction in the school operations.

The board said that prevention of crime and rehabilitation may be better accomplished "if we begin in our juvenile institution." (This is the Industrial Institute at Alto).

Idea behind the proposal is to provide training so that the education of a youthful prisoner "will not be disrupted by reason of the service of his sentence."

The annual report also showed that although total expenditures of the board, including capital outlay, were some $188,000 higher than during the past fiscal year, the actual cost to the state was only $140,000 higher.

Total expenditures were $3,812,958.23 in the fiscal year ended June 30, compared to $3,624,704 the previous fiscal year, the report showed.

Corrections Director Jack Forrester said the department had an income of $1,502,134.06 from tag-making for the Revenue department, maintenance services and other work performed.

Revenue collections, however, were $116,622.83 lower than the previous year—mainly because no new state highway road contracts were awarded during the year for prison labor, and there were fewer collections for work done under Georgia Rural Roads Authority contracts.

Capital outlay amounted to $368,959.68 and included expenditures on the new addition to Georgia State Prison at Reidsville.

Landmark Church Destroyed

HONESDALE, Pa. — Fire rages through St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church Wednesday at a loss estimated at more than $50,000. The blaze, in a structure that was considered a landmark for years, was believed to have started in the church heating plant. (Associated Press Wirephoto)

on the scene or expected before daybreak. The Esso Jamestown, the SS Berlin and the SS Amoco Florida stood by or near the stern section, while the Artemis moved over near the bow section with the Cirstobal and the SS Ticonderoga.

CARRIER NEAR

The aircraft carrier Valley Forge reported to the Coast Guard she expected to arrive shortly after midnight and her screen of five destroyers anticipated being on the scene during the early morning hours.

In addition, the Valley Forge reported she was prepared to launch six helicopters at first light and would have planes available for search duty at the same time.

The Coast Guard cutters Cherokee and Chilula also were racing to the scene.

Two Coast Guard planes stood by at Elizabeth City, N.C., to take off at 6 a.m. Thursday to lend whatever assistance they could.

PLAN ABANDONED

The Valley Forge, at first some 150 miles south-southwest of the area, originally planned to launch four planes to drop additional survival gear. Late in the afternoon, however, the plan was abandoned because of the foul weather.

At Philadelphia, the Keystone Shipping Co., owner of the Pine Ridge, identified the vessel's captain as Clark Snyder of Philadelphia. The firm said a crew list, signed aboard at the last port from a large group of eligible sailors, was customarily mailed but had not been received.

TREACHEROUS CURRENTS

Cape Hatteras, at the southern end of North Carolina's Outer Banks resort and sports fishing area, has been called a shipping graveyard because of the treacherous winds and currents in the area. The Pine Ridge, however, was well to the east of Hatteras.

The Pine Ridge, a T2 class tanker, was the 11th ship of its kind to snap in two. A total of 41 lives have been lost in 10 similar disasters.

T2 tankers were produced in large numbers during World War II and were first put in service in 1943.

The last two to break up were the Pendleton and Fort Mercer which snapped apart during a winter storm in the south Atlantic on Feb. 18, 1952. Prior to that, eight others snapped apart.

Strike Ties Up Missile Projects At Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—All construction at this missile test center, including vital work on launch facilities for the Saturn and Centaur space rockets, was halted Wednesday by a wildcat strike of ironworkers.

About 100 members of Ironworkers Local 402 picketed Cape entrances Wednesday and more than 800 other union craftsmen honored the lines. Missile launching schedules were not affected.

A Local 402 official said the strike was started by a small group of workmen and was not sanctioned by the local or the international union. An international representative, John F. Walsh of Jacksonville, flew here to try to get the ironworkers back on the job.

The strike was against Delsea Ironworks, Inc., Millville, N.J., which has a $25,000 contract with the Air Force to erect camera platforms and access stairways on blockhouses at four Titan missile complexes. The strikers object to the firm's use of nonunion labor.

stitution writer, "it looks as if a man will have a mighty hard time dodging some sort of holiday remembrance. The ladies have prepared a net that will catch every soldier in its meshes and will shower upon him delightful gifts and a most enjoyable saeson of enjoyment."

DEBUTANTES HOSTESSES

The "pick of the Peachtree beauties," members of the Debutante Club and the Junior League served as hostesses at parties. They were fortunate to have the heroes to brighten their own holidays because Georgia boys already were within sound of the fighting in France, bringing anxious moments and flags with service stars to many local homes. Besides, the gifts available that year weren't sumptuous enough to divert many a young lady's mind. They ran largely to boudoir caps and camisoles with some dazzlers such as pink lisle union suits.

Congressman William Schley Howard, also renowned as a criminal lawyer, thought his district was suffering unnecessarily from the fuel shortage and wired a protest to the fuel administrator in Washington. Food was sharply rationed and local humorists made their jokes about being "Hooverized"—a back hand tribute to Herbert Hoover's stringent measures as food administrator.

The Red Cross called for bandage rollers and knitters and response came from widely divergent sources. Atlanta society women gave a knitting party at the Capital City Club and down in Griffin the city firemen grabbed needles and yarn and spent their time between fires turning out mufflers and gloves for the Army, Navy and Marines.

PICTURE CHANGED

The picture, changed radically by December 1918. President Woodrow Wilson ate Christmas dinner with the doughboys in France, local posts expanded their hospital facilities to take in great numbers of the wounded. But on the home front there was hope and plenty.

Local bards sang of old-time delights. A writer in the Greensboro Herald-Journal dreamed of "A good old Georgy 'possum with good old Georgy yams . . . hanging in the smokehouse several Georgy hams . . . also hoghead and hominy are beckoning to me . . . And the song that's sung in Georgy of home prosperity."

In Columbus on the Enquirer-Sun an unnamed poet wrote, "It's chitlin' time in Georgia and ribs and backbone stew . . . It's chitlin' time in Georgia and jowl and souse meat too."

And The Constitution's own Frank L. Stanton summed up the postwar mood with:

"Home is looking mighty bright—
Joy is coming!
More of love and more of light—
Joy is coming!"

the second in a week—has pushed into western New England.

Weather-blamed deaths across the eastern half of the nation mounted. The causes were many: overtaxed stoves and heating appliances touched off deadly fires in the South; ice-crusted car windows—like those which prevented two North Dakotans from seeing an approaching train; heart attacks suffered while shoveling foot-deep snow in the Midwest.

The latest United Press International count showed at least 42 persons dead since a storm hit the Midwest three days ago. There were 15 weather deaths in Ohio, seven in both Florida and Illinois, four in Missouri, two each in Indiana, Michigan and North Dakota, and one each in Alabama, New York state and Pennsylvania.

It was 20 below zero at Huron, S.D., 17 below at Dickinson, N.D., and a 2-below reading followed a record 12.5 inches of snow in Chicago Wednesday. Midway Airport at Chicago, the world's busiest, was closed for 10 hours because of iced runways.

The storm and cold has a brighter side, however. It meant a white Christmas for much of the nation northeast of the Mississippi and an early holiday for pupils of snowed-in towns in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

And Alaskans saw dark prospects for a white Christmas. It's cold enough there in the nation's most northern state but the ground is bare and skies are clear.

At the other end of the nation, a hard freeze, extending as far south as Lake Okeechobee, is expected in northern Florida Thursday.

All in all, it was a fitting day for the official arrival of winter. Winter began at 3:27 p.m. Wednesday—the time the sun made its deepest penetration of the year in the Southern Hemisphere. From now on, days gradually will grow longer.

In Atlanta, the beginning of winter was cold but it was a long way from the all-time record low for the day—6 degrees—registered in 1901.

The low here Wednesday was about 18 degrees, recorded around midnight. The high temperature was 33 degrees.

Clinkscales Cites Clerk Of Court

Court Official Cited at Jefferson

Constitution State News Service

JEFFERSON—Judge Maylon B. Clinkscales, whose stormy tenure as Piedmont Circuit jurist will end Jan. 1, has cited Jackson County Superior Court Clerk Billy Elder for contempt of court and ordered him to pay fines totaling $600 or serve 60 days in jail.

Elder confirmed Wednesday that Judge Clinkscales had issued a citation dated Dec. 13 holding Elder in contempt "for failure to perform his duties as required of him by law."

DIRECTED APPEARANCE

Clinkscales returned the citation in Gwinnett Superior Court at Lawrenceville, declaring that Elder had ignored an earlier order directing him to appear at Lawrenceville on Dec. 8 and show why he shouldn't be cited "for failing and refusing to perform the duties required by law as clerk of the jury commissioners of Jackson County."

Elder said Wednesday that in regard to the Dec. 8 show-cause order, "I have not violated any laws and I have not been legally served with any citation."

The citation issued by Clinkscales ordered Elder sentenced to 20 days in jail or a $200 fine on three counts, the jail terms in each case to be reduced to seven days upon payment of the fines.

TEXT OF CHARGES

Clinkscales' citation charged that Elder "would not perform his duties" on three occasions—Oct. 6, Oct. 12 and Oct. 13—and that the Jackson jury commissioners were therefore "unable to revise the jury list of Jackson County . . ."

The citation asserted that there was "no apparent reason" for Elder "to refuse to perform his duties unless the jury box in his possession had been tampered with and he was endeavoring to conceal this in self-defense."

Clinkscales said in his order that the court had "no other alternative" than to assume that Elder "has not only failed to perform an official duty required of him by law, but that he is attempting to conceal misconduct in office . . ."

Nativity Brought To Life in Icy Night

By JACK KAPLAN

The homes in Cascade Heights sparkled in their multicolored 40-watt Christmas dress Wednesday night, but it was the West End Presbyterian Church's Nativity scene that stopped all the traffic.

Heater-warmed sightseers had to wipe away the frost again to confirm what they saw through their car windows.

Mary, Joseph, the Three Wise men and all stood on the church lawn at Sewell Road and Lyndhurst Drive, SW . . . and they were alive.

They all tried bravely to stand stock still, but 20-degree temperatures egged on by chilling winds sent a betraying shiver up the spines of the cast.

"We did the same thing last year," said Miss Carolyn Norris, of 1355 Campbellton Road, "but it wasn't as cold."

The idea of a live Nativity scene came from Miss Norris' Young Adult class. They weren't about to let a little cool weather stop a new-found tradition. Besides, the cast only stands 10 minutes, then another team comes in.

The minister, The Rev. Cyrus S. Mallard, had just come in from his ten minute shift as a wise man. He still shook a little while stripping off his costume, a leather jacket and a sweater.

"Man!", he said. "That's the coldest 10 minutes I ever spent. But we feel like it's worth it. We're kind of proud of our little tradition."

In the kitchen, there was plenty of hot coffee and hot chocolate and a mountain of cookies. The children who had just come in were laughing. They stuffed red cheeks with cookies and hot chocolate after carefully laying aside their costumes.

"It's fun for the youngsters, too," the Rev. Mr. Mallard said. "They look forward to playing in the scene."

Miss Norris said the live Nativity scene would be enacted Thursday and Friday nights from 7:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

G. A. Towns Dies; Taught At Atlanta U.

George A. Towns, educator and former professor at Atlanta University, died at his home at 594 University Pl., NW, late Tuesday night. He was 91.

He was the father of Mrs. Grace Towns Hamilton, who for the past 18 years has been executive director of the Atlanta Urban League.

Born in Albany in 1870, he enrolled in Atlanta University at the age of 14. After graduation he entered Harvard University and was graduated with highest honors.

For 27 years he was professor at Atlanta University in the science and English departments, and was coach of the university's debating teams for many years. Upon his retirement, he was called to Fort Valley as assistant to the president of Fort Valley College.

He later became acting president and remained until the school became a state institution.

He is survived by his wife, the former Nellie McNair, whom he married in 1900; sons, George Towns Jr., Oakland, Calif., and Myron B. Towns, of Nashville, Tenn.; another daughter, Mrs. Percy Jenkins, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Acid Tosser Injures Detective

A private detective late Wednesday was severely burned when two Negro men whom he surprised at a building under construction hurled acid into his face, police said.

Avery J. Sanford, 25, of 1566 Jonesboro Rd., SE, was admitted to Georgia Baptist Hospital.

Patrolman R. E. Harper said Sanford was badly burned about the face, head, arms and chest. Part of the acid got into his eyes, Harper said, but the extent of damage could not be determined immediately.

THROWS PAN OF LIQUID

Sanford, an employe of a private detective agency, said he had stopped to check a building under construction in the 1900 block of Stewart Avenue, SW.

Two Negro men, one tall and the other short, came up and said they were part of a crew employed to clean the building, Harper said he was told.

Sanford said he looked off, and when he looked back one threw a pan full of liquid into his eyes.

BLINDED BY ACID

Another employe of the same detective firm, T. C. Terry, who was checking behind Sanford, discovered Sanford lying on the ground, blinded and writhing in pain.

Harper, the first officer to reach the scene, said Sanford could hardly breathe. Harper placed Sanford in a patrol car and rushed him to the hospital.

One Negro was described as six feet tall, wearing coveralls with a white sweat shirt over them and a leather cap. The second was described as five-feet, six-inches tall, wearing blue coveralls and leather cap.

The two were reported riding in a 1948 model Ford with the right front fender and headlight damaged.

Harper said no motive for the acid hurling could be established. He said Sanford could have surprised the two at an attempted burglary. He said Sanford could not recall having arrested either suspect previously.

He Gets His Ride — In a Police Car

A 15-year-old boy who started a one-man campaign to reduce trolley fares in Atlanta ended up with a free ride in a police car to the Juvenile Detention Home.

Patrolmen C. O. Anderson and D. K. McClain said the youth boarded a trolley at Marietta and Magnolia streets, and deposited a dime in the fare box.

Told by the operator that the fare was 20 cents, he was quoted: "To heck with that."

Patrolmen said the boy grabbed a transfer, took a seat and refused to budge.

FBI Agents To Testify In Holdup

FBI agents are scheduled to testify Thursday against a pair of ex-convicts charged with robbing a Concord, Ga., bank in the continuation of a preliminary hearing before a U.S. commissioner here.

Lawrence Robert Duncan, 45, formerly the No. 1 man on the Atlanta police's "most wanted" list, and St. Clair Johnston, 53, an escaper from Alabama's Kilby Prison, have been charged with stealing $1,558 from the Concord Banking Co. on the night of Dec. 12. Both have denied the charge.

The hearing, before U.S. Commissioner Frank A. Holden, was recessed Tuesday after three hours of testimony. It will resume Thursday at 9:30 a.m.

3 TESTIFY

A previous session was devoted to testimony by three government witnesses who said that Duncan and Johnston were in Concord on the day the bank was robbed. All three were questioned extensively by defense attorneys.

Mrs. Kathryn Barker, the bank's cashier, testified she recognized Duncan as a man who came into the bank on Dec. 12 and requested change. She said the man with Duncan was about Johnston's size.

Mrs. Claire Owen, clerk at a store immediately adjacent to the bank and which was robbed also, said she sold Duncan a cap but that she was not sure that Johnston was the man with him.

TOOK TAG NUMBER

Roger Strickland Jr., operator of the store and son of the bank's president, said he took the tag number of a car driven by Duncan at the suggestion of Mrs. Owen.

Strickland discovered the robbery on the morning of Dec. 13 when he went to open his store. He said the store had been broken into and looted and that the robbers had apparently entered the adjoining bank through a door which connected the two buildings.

Salvation Army Still Needs $7,000 With 3 Days to Go in Kettle Drive

The Salvation Army, through its annual downtown "Kettle Drive," is still $7,000 short of its goal to raise $53,000 to provide a measure of Christmas cheer to needy Metropolitan Atlantans.

SA Welfare Secretary Capt. Daniel K. Biggs said the current appeal, with three days left to go, is running behind the same period last year.

He reported some 300 food orders are unfilled, due to a lack of funds. So far, more than 1,500 food orders have been distributed, along with nearly 700 pairs of shoes for school children.

Capt. Biggs said the Salvation Army's toy center at 314 Peachtree St., NE, will remain open through Friday. Since Monday, about 5,000 children received toys and another 3,000 are expected to appeal by Friday.

Ike Advised Dillon To Refuse Treasury

By FELIX BELAIR JR.

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower told Douglas Dillon before he accepted President-elect John F. Kennedy's offer of the Treasury portfolio that he should refuse it unless promised a free hand in the department's fiscal and monetary policies.

The President gave this advice to his undersecretary of state orally and in a follow-up letter. He told Dillon that he must insist, as a condition of acceptance, on a guarantee of freedom from outside political influence and from the Democratic platform pledges on public debt management and what it called "the present high-interest, tight-money policy."

It was the President's view, and that of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, however, that Dillon should probably decline the President-elect's offer even if he received such commitments in writing, White House sources reported.

The President and vice president felt that as a member of the Eisenhower "team" Dillon would not want to be associated with an administration that, in their view, could not live up to both the Democratic platform pledges and the commitment to Dillon.

In announcing his acceptance of the Treasury post last week Dillon said he had been advised by the President and Nixon that they had no objection to the move, "if I felt this was something that would be in the national security interest of the country, and if we were to work towards a sound fiscal policy, as is the case."

White House informants said Wednesday that whatever else the President may have said to Dillon, he certainly made it clear to him that he did not want him to become Kennedy's secretary of the Treasury. It was said for the vice president that Dillon "got no encouragement" from him when he consulted him about the offer.

Yule Spirits In Time for Yule Spirit?

ATHENS, Tenn. (AP)—Just in time to warm their own season spirits, thieves this week carted away a moonshine still from Henry's Antique Shop.

Sheriff Roy Buttram said the 50-gallon capacity still was on display in front of the shop. The thieves, he said, cut a chain anchoring the apparatus and loaded it onto a truck.

Radio Checked Out, FAA Tells United

WASHINGTON (AP)—E. R. Quesada, Federal Aviation Agency chief, said Wednesday night there is nothing to indicate faulty radio operation of a checkpoint over which a United Air Lines DC8 jet flew moments before it collided with another airliner in the New York City area last Friday.

Quesada made this statement in a lengthy reply to questions posed by William A. Patterson, president of United, in a news conference at Chicago Tuesday.

The FAA Administrator, in a letter to Patterson, also took issue with the United president on two other points:

1. He said Patterson was reported as saying that Quesada had "left an 'impression' that the United Air Lines plane involved was 'carelessly operated.'" The latter phrase was Patterson's, "not mine," wrote Quesada. The FAA chief told Patterson he had said only that the DC8 was supposed to fly only to the area above Preston, N.J., there to remain in a holding pattern, but that it was obvious it had flown beyond the point because the collision occurred over Staten Island.

2. Patterson had said it was improper for Quesada to comment publicly until all facts were known. Quesada said that no one involved could or should suppress "elemental facts as to which there can be little or no dispute, particularly where there is such a legitimate basis for public interest and press inquiry."

Patterson had posed these questions for Quesada to answer: Was the Preston radio signal operating normally and did FAA have a report from other pilots who flew in the area two hours later, reporting malfunction?

Quesada said "the answer is 'Yes'," the Preston radio system was operating normally; "we have no verified pilot report, direct or otherwise, which indicates a malfunction at Preston."

Patterson also asked whether the general area radar control center dropped surveillance of the DC8 and, in so doing, did the Idlewild approach control pick up the plane at that time?

Quesada replied that the area traffic control center at Idlewild did discontinue its radar tracking of the DC8 "in accordance with standard procedures," when the flight approached the Preston area where it was due to go into a "holding pattern" until ordered in for landing at Idlewild.

The DC8 pilot was instructed to contact Idlewild for further orders to move in toward the field. The Idlewild approach control was ready to do this, said Quesada, but "could not locate the jet in or near the Preston holding pattern" and obviously did not track it.

Ethiopians Besieging Rebel Band

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP). A brief, sharp battle was fought on the edge of Addis Ababa Wednesday night when army units surrounded the house of fugitive rebel leader Girmame Neway.

Heavy firing could be heard in the Entotto Mountains where the rebel leaders are reported holed up since their revolt failed last week.

Truckloads of troops moved through the city.

Associated Press correspondent Homer Smith, who lives in the vicinity of the fighting, said shell fragments landed on the roof of his house. Machine gun and mortar fire continued steadily for half an hour, then slackened off.

Ethiopian official sources say Neway's house was surrounded but did not say whether Neway was in the building at the time.

Rebels from the 5,000-man guard of the royal household led the short-lived revolt while Emperor Haile Selassie was visiting Brazil. They proclaimed the crown prince, Asfa Wassan, as king. Loyal troops put down the rebellion.

Space Mice Amy and Moe Are Parents of 5 Bouncers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Amy and Moe, two-thirds of a trio of mice shot 600 miles into space in October, are the parents of five healthy offspring—the first-born of animals sent aloft in the U.S. space program.

Sally, the third member of the group, is expecting and should deliver a litter next week, scientists at the School of Aviation Medicine said Wednesday.

Moe hasn't taken any notice of his children and won't be allowed to do so, Dr. Hans G. Clamann said. If Moe didn't like his sons and daughters, Clamann explained, he probably would eat them.

Radar Tower Drama as 135 Died: 'Trouble! That Plane Isn't Moving'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency Wednesday released radio tapes from a LaGuardia Field controller in which he said at the instant of Friday's historic airliner collision: "I think we have trouble here with a TWA Connie. There's something wrong! He's not moving or anything. He might have got hit by another airplane."

The controller apparently was tracing the Trans World Airlines Constellation on radar as it moved toward a landing at LaGuardia Field.

135 DIED IN ALL

It collided in the air with a United Air Lines jet passenger ship and both plunged to earth. The death toll was 135 in the air and on the ground.

There ensued a conversation between ground controllers at LaGuardia and Idlewild, in which the latter was asked about "a United jet that's missing."

"He was last cleared to 5,000 feet," the Idlewild controller said of the jet, which was bound for his airport.

EQUIPMENT ALERTED

"Oh, boy!" exclaimed the LaGuardia man. "Our man was at five too. We lost one aircraft. I don't know where he's at now."

The Constellation plunged to earth on Staten Island, carrying all 44 persons aboard to their death. The United jet went down in a crowded Brooklyn neighborhood, killing 84 persons aboard, plus 7 on the ground.

A short time later, the voice of the LaGuardia controller was heard to say: "Hey, Joe, we might have a midair collision, so Walt's going to alert the emergency equipment. Its TWA (flight) 266."

GET NO ANSWER

Earlier, as the Constellation began a gradual descent toward LaGuardia, the controller warned: "That appears to be jet traffic off your right, now 3 o'clock at one mile northeast bound."

There was no apparent reply from the TWA airliner. The controller made several vain attempts to renew contact.

Aid to Job-Hit Areas Readied for Kennedy

By JOHN D. MORRIS

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—Advisers to President-elect John F. Kennedy have drafted recommendations for expansion of public welfare and public works programs to help meet problems of the country's economically depressed areas.

The proposals include federal grants for relief of the needy, immediate executive action to broaden and accelerate the distribution of surplus food, revision of the unemployment insurance system and increased federal appropriatiosn for various types of public works projects.

These and other recommendations are to be put in final form at a meeting next Tuesday of Kennedy's task force on depressed areas. They were drafted by panels of the task force at closed sessions last week.

The task force was set up by the President-elect with Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) as chairman. It consists of 22 business, labor and civil leaders.

Douglas plans to hand the group's report to Kennedy on Jan. 1 Early congressional action on a number of proposals requiring legislation is expected to be sought.

The main legislative recommendation will be for federal loans and grants to develop new industries and retrain workers in areas of chronic unemployment such as the West Virginia coal fields and the textile centers of New England.

The suggested redevelopment legislation would follow the lines of a $390 million bill passed by the Senate in the last Congress. President Eisenhower vetoed a modified version.

In the welfare field, federal funds would be made available for the first time in 25 years to help finance state programs of general relief.

Bandit Locks Up Grocer, Flees with $375 Here

A tall, slender bandit late Wednesday robbed a Marietta Road, NW, curb store of $375 and escaped after locking the owner in a back room, police said.

William Andrew Needham, 47, operator of the market at 1734 Marietta Rd., said he was preparing to close for the day, went outside and started the motor of his car.

The tall man followed him back into the store, Needham said, and ordered a package of cigarets. He said the man then drew a pistol and announced:

"This is a holdup . . . gimme the money."

Needham said the bandit took several bills from his shirt pocket, carried him to a back room where he searched him and took more money from his trouser pocket, then locked him in the room and rifled the cash register before leaving.

"I could hear him tinkering with my car and I thought he was going to take that, too," Needham told Detectives J. H. Landrum and O. L. Adams. "I managed to break the lock loose and got out. My car was still there but he was gone."

Panel Asks Caution On Population Bills

Senate-House Body Asks Year More To Study Census

Georgia legislators were asked by a joint Senate-House committee Wednesday to "exercise restraint" next year in introducing legislation containing population clauses.

The request came from the Joint Committee on the Operations of the General Assembly, which said it needs another year to study the effect of the 1960 census on population bills.

House Speaker George L. Smith II is chairman of the committee.

The committee issued a weighty compilation Wednesday of all the population bills passed since the 1870 census.

(Population bills are measures limited in their application by the population of counties under a certain U.S. census.)

The committee compiled the report with the Office of Legislative Counsel under a resolution passed last session.

Smith said the compilation of the acts and local constitutional amendments "has been much more difficult than had been originally anticipated."

In its brief session Wednesday morning, the committee voted to recommend to the Legislature the election of Frank Edwards as legislative counsel, Frank Blankenship as chief deputy, and named Sidney Sheppard and Charles Tidwell as aides. The committee also voted to shorten its name to "Legislative Services Committee."

And the body also voted to recommend that a bill be passed to set up a new annotated code for the state.

Smith, emphasizing the importance of the population study, said most Georgia counties have exceeded the population brackets set for them under previous population laws.

Thus, some of them will come under laws which county officials do not want to apply to their governments. "One member found his sheriff will have to have four bloodhounds," Smith stated.

The committee's report on the number of population bills will allow city and county attorneys to make a study of existing population laws, find which ones might apply to their counties, and let them draw amendments to exclude them from laws they don't want to come under, Smith added.

Rep. Frank Cheatham of Chatham County, a committee member, said DeKalb County, with its fast population growth, probably will be affected more than any other county by the 1960 census.

He pointed out that DeKalb has moved into population brackets once occupied by Fulton and might find itself coming under some old Fulton acts.

S. Freeway Open from Memorial Dr.

A new stretch of the South Expressway will be opened to traffic Thursday, City Construction Chief Ray Nixon said.

South-bound vehicles now may enter the South Expressway at Washington Street and Memorial Drive, north of the old entrance at Richardson Street.

The opening had been scheduled for early in January.

North-bound traffic on the same expressway shortly after Christmas will proceed northward from Richardson Street, the present terminus, to Clarke Street, thence to Crew Street, and via a detour to Memorial Drive. The detour is necessary while bridges are being built on Capitol Avenue and Memorial.

Completion of the downtown connector, linking the North and South expressways, is expected late in 1963 or very early in 1964.

Defense Fellowships Go to 43 in Georgia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Georgia received 43 of 527 national defense graduate fellowships approved Wednesday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at 146 institutions for the 1961-62 academic year.

The University of Georgia received 19 fellowships, Emory University 15 and Georgia Tech nine.

The HEW also announced federal school aid of $11,571 for Monroe County and $4,658 for Hart County.

The grants were announced through the office of Sen. Herman Talmadge.

Psycholoay for Young Marrieds ---Your Partner Is a Human Being

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (UPI)—"The wife who expects her husband to be a pillar of reliability, steadiness and patience and at the same time an impulsive, fun-loving Don Juan is going to be disappointed."

Dr. N. Q. Brill of the University of California School of Medicine, Los Angeles, makes that prediction in a report on "emotional problems of marriage."

The psychiatrist, reporting in "postgraduate medicine," a journal for doctors, also has something to say about husbands' expectations of wives.

PREDICTS DISAPPOINTMENT

He predicts disappointment for the husband who expects the little woman to be the proverbial mistress, cook and lady—and, at the same time, a submissive, independent, self-reliant, intelligent and dependent female.

What the expert would like all involved in marriage to concede is this: That the partner in wedlock is a human being, a mixture of strengths and weaknesses.

"When one examines the desires and personality needs of both men and women in relation to marriage," he said, "one ordinarily finds that to some extent they both want someone to love them, someone to confide in, someone to respect their ideals and appreciate and stimulate their ambitions."

NOT ALL

But that's not all. Brill said men and women, despite their differences, also want:

—Someone to understand their moods.

—Someone to help them make decisions.

—Someone to look up to.

—Someone to give them self-confidence.

—Someone to appreciate them just as they are, to admire them and make them feel important, and to relieve loneliness.

But what about love—the romantic love that's touted by poets and the spinners of romantic ballads?

"Love, like the proverbial rock," he said, "can be worn away by the constant drip of frustration, misunderstanding and antogonisms that so often develop.

"Unfortunately, in many instances, the rosy future anticipated by most couples in love standing before the altar fades into a drab landscape when the battles for control and gratification are fought for a lifetime or until a more realistic truce is effected—or the marriage destroyed

Girls in Villages of Iran Find Husbands Scarce

TEHERAN (WNS)—Girls in the villages of Iran are having a hard time finding husbands. The boys are flocking to cities where they can earn more or get a better education to prepare for higher paid jobs.

Girls may not follow them because they are handicapped by Iranian religious tenets and the partriarchal family system.

Even in this more liberal Moslem land of Iran, only a small percentage of women work. Religion and family tradition require girls to stay home, to help their mothers in the fields and look after the households.

Girls may not go anywhere unaccompanied, nor are permitted any responsibilities. The father must bear all responsibilities, even doing the shopping. Thus, when the Near East Foundation started home economic classes for girls in the Vermin area of Iran, the girls refused to learn economy by marketing.

Although parents realize there is a surplus of unmarried girls of all ages in all the villages, where 70 per cent of the population lives, nothing is done to change the traditional way of life. And girls are suffering.

Dr. Carl F. Kraenzel, director of the Near East Foundation in Iran, said: "What women need is education so they may be equipped to fill jobs in the urban areas."

A few years ago the Near East Foundation started a teaching training school for girls in the Vermin area.

He thinks the best vocation for them in the cities would be teaching. But to teach they must have high school educations. Yet most schools in the villages are to the fourth or sixth grades.

Christmas Is Family Day Says Queen of England

LONDON (UPI)—"Christmas is a family day," says Queen Elizabeth, and that's how Britain's royal family will observe the holiday.

This year, the time the queen spends with her three children during the Christmas holidays will be all the more precious because shortly afterward, in January, Elizabeth sets off on a three-month official tour of India, Pakistan, Nepal and Iran.

In accordance with royal family tradition, the queen intends to pass Christmas at her country home, Sandringham House, with Prince Philip and the children—Prince Charles, Princess Anne and baby Prince Andrew. It will be Andrew's first stay at Sandringham—and he'll also be the only royal family member to have a stocking hung at the foot of his bed Christmas Eve.

GIFTS EXCHANGED

The family will exchange gifts Christmas Eve, after dinner, in the European tradition. A number of small tables, each labeled with the name of a member of the Christmas party, will be set with its own collection of gaily wrapped parcels.

This year, in addition to her husband and children, the queen plans to gather around her at Christmas her mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, the Duchess of Kent and her daughter, Princess Alexandra, and Alexandra's brothers, Prince Michael and the Duke of Kent — providing the soldier-duke can get leave from the army.

JONES INVITED

Princess Margaret and her husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, also will be asked to stay a few days, as will the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the queen's aunt and uncle, and their teen-age sons, Princes William and Richard. A few intimate friends of the queen and Philip probably also will share the holiday for two or three days.

To keep the royal Christmas really private this year, the queen has pre-recorded her customary Christmas message to the nation. Preparations and rehearsals for this in the past have so disorganized Christmas morning at Sandringham that the queen decided to record the speech in advance this time. But it will be broadcast at the usual time on Christmas Day, 3 p.m., when most Britons are finishing their Christmas dinners.

Christmas morning the queen, with her husband and children, other relatives and friends, will walk across Sandringham's park to services in the beautiful church on the estate, St. Mary Magdalene's, and join in the singing of Christmas hymns and carols. Prince Philip usually reads one of the lessons.

ROYAL MENU

The royal Christmas dinner is a traditional one of tomato soup, roast turkey with chestnut stuffing, a plum pudding ablaze with brandy, mince pies and small goodies. Everyone, at these occasions, must pull a "cracker" and wear the paper hat it produces. Champagne is the only wine drunk with the meal. Coffee is served later in the drawing room. This year the queen will be able to watch herself, for the first time, delivering her Christmas message to the nation over TV.

The Christmas tree is another old tradition carefully observed at Sandringham. A tall fir from the forest on the estate is chosen and set up in the long, white ballroom, decorated as Christmas trees the world over are decorated, and illuminated with lamps.

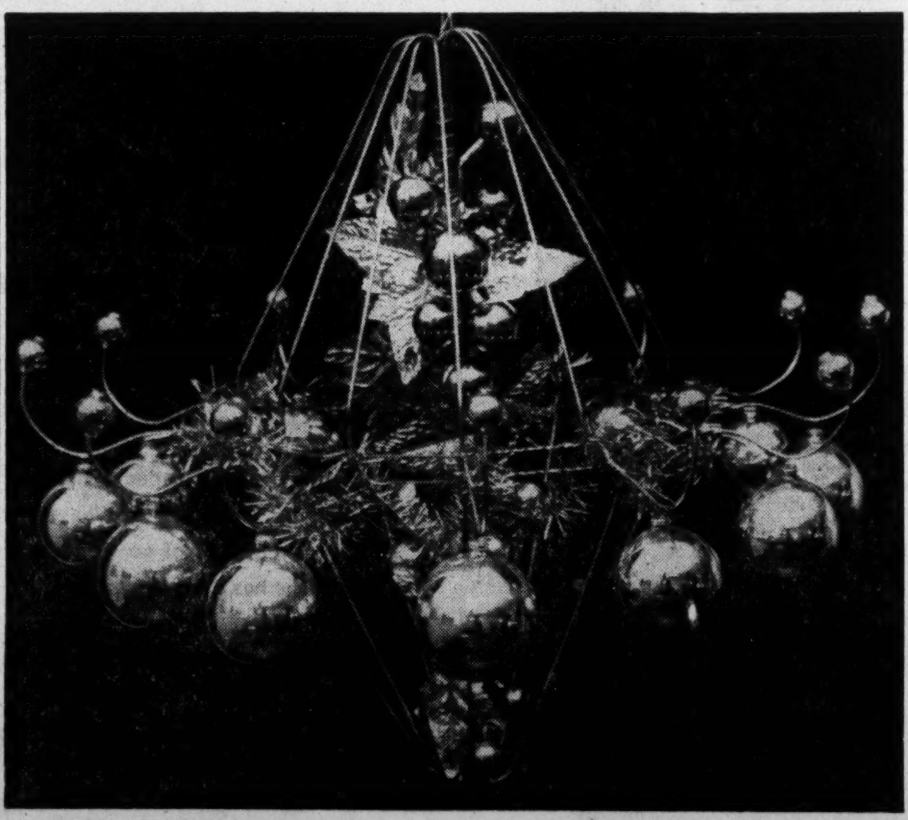
GIFTS FOR ALL

On the tree hang gifts for "everyone under the roof." Those for the family and house guests are just little joke gifts or gadgets, but members of the staff receive handsome presents. The housekeeper has carefully ascertained beforehand what each member of the household staff would prefer, and these gifts have been duly purchased, wrapped and one of the queen's Christmas cards affixed.

Two members of the royal circle have birthdays at Christmas. Princess Alexandra will be 24 years old this Christmas Day, and the Dutchess of Gloucester, "Auntie" to the queen, will be 59. They will receive at least token birthday gifts in addition to their Christmas parcels, and will be formally toasted by the queen at Christmas dinner.

The holiday festivities carry through Dec. 26 which to Britain is Boxing Day or St. Stephens Day, and a public holiday.

Customarily the royal family remains at Sandringham until Jan. 2, so all may celebrate the New Year together.



Here's Something to Hang for Christmas

Among the latest in do-it-yourself holiday trees is thie tree made of—of all things—one dozen coat hangers. This one is trimmed with tree balls and strings of tinsel. The hangers are connected with rubber bands and the main "stem" is made firm with a wire wrapping. The entire tree is painted gold—any color will do—and can be hung anywhere. Artificial Wreaths

Do your artificial wreaths and sprays and poinsettias look too tired to use again this year?

Try sponging them with "dry" soap or detergent suds skimmed from the top of the bowl. This softens them, washes away the year's accumulated dust, and makes them glisten again.

Launder ribbons in lukewarm suds, and press under a layer of wax paper.

FPC. Charles Fyfe Continues Search In Georgia

By BETTY CARROLLTON

"I know she's still alive. I can't explain how I know it, but that's something I'm sure of, something I really believe. Just as I believe that someday, somewhere I'll find her. Maybe even right here in Georgia!"

The clean-cut blond youth spoke softly, but firmly. His fingers constantly worried the brim of the U.S. Army hat he twirled in his hands. But that was the only outward sign of the tension that for years has been a part of his every waking hour.

His eyes were shining with the special glow of hope as Pfc. Charles Fyfe told of his never-ending search for the sister he lost through, probably, the legal red tape of an adoption in England years ago.

FADED PHOTOGRAPH

"This won't be much help now," Charles said as he exhibited a photo, fading with age, worn and wrinkled by the countless times he'd taken it from his wallet. The picture caught the smiling features of a chubby, blonde moppet who is all the family Charles has.

"She's 21 now," the young soldier continued, "and I'm sure she's trying as hard to locate me as I am to find her."

Charles, who inspired his fellow soldiers of the 48th Transportation Co. at the Atlanta General Depot to play Santa for orphans at the Pine Mountain Baptist Children's home this week, has been conducting the search for his sister alone most of his adult life. Finding her is a dream Charles believes will come true.

His story came to light this month when he won a long-distance call home at the USO dance sponsored by the Atlanta B'nai B'rith. Although the special holiday calls were planned for the continental United States only, an exception was made for Charles when sponsors learned the 22-year-old soldier is from Scotland and knew no one—except his Army friends—in the United States. He was given the price of a call to his homeland.

NO PARENTS

"I have no parents," Charles said simply. "But my good friend, Christopher Champion, does and I've come to think of them as my family, too. He came with me to Canada and then to the United States. Now we're together here at the Atlanta General Depot. We'll make the call to his parents in Scotland on Christmas Day."

The handsome, hazel-eyed youth was born in Leith, Edinburgh. He lost both parents during World War II, when Charles was about four years old, his sister three. Throughout their childhood they were shunted from orphanage to orphanage in Scotland and later in England. At one of these institutions, he was separated from his sister. The little blonde girl faded from his life, but not his memory.

"Five years ago," Charles related, "I learned of an aunt, May Elsmore (that's her maiden name), in Sydney, Australia. She is my mother's sister. I wrote to her and she answered my letter immediately."

His aunt wrote Charles that she had kept his sister in her home for awhile. But after her husband died, the Australian was financially unable to provide a home for the youngster and returned her to an orphanage.

There the trail ended. Charles said that his last letter to his aunt was returned with the official notation that no one of that name lived at the Sydney address now.

But Pfc. Fyfe did not give up hope.

HIS EYE CAUGHT

"One day," he said, "I was idly looking at a London newspaper. I never read notices of marriages but, somehow, my eyes happened to catch the name of a girl who'd recently married. She had the same name of my sister—Iris Dorothy. I thought surely I had found her."

He immediately called the newspaper office to ask for the name of the person who had submitted the marriage notice in the statistical column. He was told such information was strictly confidential. His only other lead was that the girl had married an American serviceman.

At one time, Charles enlisted the aid of his representative in Parliament in the search for Iris Dorothy. But those efforts, too, were unsuccessful.

"I'll keep on looking for my sister," he declared. "My search will end only when I find her."

Compliments From Secretaries Are Hints for the 'Old Meanies'

By YOLANDE GWIN

One man around town, Mr. J. Austin Dilbeck, is strutting around as proud as the proverbial peacock these days.

All because his Girl Friday, Mrs. Sara Williams, said so many nice things about him that he was named "Boss of the Year."

It all started when the girls who form the Atlanta Insurance Women's Club decided they would liven up these last few days of the waning 1960 by staging a contest to elect "The Boss of the Year."

Each wrote a letter on why her boss should have the title. The winning letter by Mrs. Williams resulted in Mr. Dilbeck, chairman of the board of the Georgia Casualty and Surety Co., winning the title.

BOSS OF ANY YEAR

She wrote in part that "I nominate my boss as Boss of the Year, for, in fact, he could be the boss of any year. If I can accurately express him in words, everyone will agree . . . he is an executive who commands everyone's respect and admiration."

Some of the compliments expressed by the secretaries are passed along for the benefit of some executives-around-town who are old meanies and wonder why they are not popular with their workers. Here's one:

A RARE CREATURE

"A good boss is a rare creature, usually a man composed of many natures and many moods. He commands respect and loyalty from his associates. He has a sympathetic listening ear and a complimentary pat on the back for a job well done. He is a humble asker of favors and a patient resolver of problems. He is a creature who can always be counted on to back up anyone needing backing up . . ."

"I CROWN THEE, BOSS OF THE YEAR"
Mrs. Sara Williams and J. Austin Dilbeck

Another man was complimented this way: "He is never too busy to listen to the personal problem of his 30 employes and each one considers him a personal friend."

This secretary said: "True sincerity is a quality very few of us possess and, of my boss's many assets, to me, this is the greatest. And he is kind and considerate to his secretary."

Another said: "I have worked for him for five years and find him to be everything a boss should be."

NO TIME FOR PLAY

"My boss spends most of his time at work," wrote another Girl Friday. "He is involved in so many different business fields he has no time for play. In fact not enough time really for his family and home life. He doesn't have any time to call his own—never has time for a game of golf nor a fishing nor a hunting trip as most businessmen have."

She adds this cheering thought for bosses to remember:

"When I need time off, it is always permitted."

Another secretary wrote out a list of "Boss Qualities" for her employer whom she said was "5 feet 8 inches tall, has brown hair and blue eyes, is 52 years old and weighs 137 pounds and is friendly, ambitious and energetic."

Here's what she says:

BOSS QUALITIES

"He is a typical boss. His work is his first love; he keeps appointments, he is punctual; his customers come first; he upholds the insurance industry; he is a sports enthusiast; he has a smile for everyone he meets; he is fussy and particular as are all bosses; he thinks his secretary should never be sick; he doesn't believe in working overtime; he can't find anything when he is in the office by himself and believes in coffee breaks!"

Death Exposes Rome Bigamy

ROME (WNS) — Guglielmo Volpi had to die before his two wives and six children learned that he had been a bigamist for the last ten years. He lived with his first wife all week and with his second wife on Sundays. The first wife believed he was at the football games with his pals on Sundays, and the second wife believed that she had married a traveling salesman who got home only on his one day off.

Color Is the Latest Fashion Word In Brilliantly Hued Fake Jewels

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

More jewelry is being worn today because the settings are right.

This is the profound judgment of a man known the country over for an extraordinary technique for putting colorful jewels in unusual settings and ended up with them being worn more and more.

On a recent visit to Atlanta, Mr. Robert, designer of jewelry and boutiques pointed out that it isn't the mounting of the stone of which he was speaking but it is the fashion a woman is wearing.

"Necklines on today's fashions are so devised as to simply scream for a jewel. The suit silhouette leaves the woman the decision to make as to where the focal point of interest will be. This she decides with a jewel—on the lapel, the collar, within the collar, on the sleeve, at the waist and wherever. Just name the fashion for anytime of day or night and you can name a foil for a piece of jewelry," he commented.

DEMAND COLOR

"And the thing these fashions seem to demand most from jewelry is color. Stones of the pinks, yellows, blues, and browns are perhaps dominating the jewelry colors right now. But plum, red, green, and black are very important, too," he continued.

Mr. Robert's jewelry is of the fake variety but so elegantly concieved and executed that the layman's eye would not trust itself to point out a difference. Mr. Robert was willing to hazard a guess that more women prefer fakes than the real thing these days.

MAKE-BELIEVE GLITTER FOR A JEWEL OF A CHRISTMAS GIFT
Mr. Robert, Jewel Designer, Shows His Creation To Evelyn Brannon

"Today's costume jewelry is very superior. It can cost as little as a few dollars or as much as several hundred dollars. Much of it is a definite luxury. On the other hand the majority of it is within the reach of everyone's pocketbook. Because of this a woman can very easily have the exactly right jewel for her costume. To me, this is the reason why I turned to costume jewelry rather than to precious jewelry is in the making. It's a matter of having more with which to do a complete costuming job.

"For instance, I am right now in the process of designing and building the jewelry for one of your leading Georgia ladies in politics to wear to the Inaugural Ball in January. Doubtlessly she could have chosen precious jewelery. However, she realizes the value of the right jewel in the right setting and that the fakery is so clever she could afford to pretend. Now she will have her jewelry of peacock colors to compliment her dress and not worry about the safety or loss of her jewels."

COMPLETE SET

Mr. Robert's jewelry collection is built around the complete set including necklace, earrings, pin, and bracelet all done in the same color and theme. You may wear any one piece singly, in pairs or wear them altogether. The beauty of this arrangement is a completeness and still a separateness.

His selection of bibs may come in any length from the very short and close, to the very long and loose.

—WARN YOUR HUBBY—

Perfume Racket Nets Crooks Rich Profits

NEW YORK (WNS)—The perfume racket is again with us, for it is peculiar to the Christmas season. The perfume racketeers are trying again for their annual $50,000,000 take from unsuspecting consumers who believe they are getting a bargain in fine name perfumes.

The racket is worked in a number of ways. One is to counterfeit the bottles of well-known brands, fill them with some cheap scent, counterfeit the name brand seal, and then peddle the bottles as genuine.

Door-to-door salesmen, or obscure stores offer Paris name brands for half price, telling some plausible story as to how the supposed fine perfume has been obtained. They carry an open sample to be sniffed, which is, of course, the genuine Chanel No. 5, Lanvin Arpege, or whatever supposed brand is being peddled. The bargain bottle contains anything but.

COUNTERFEIT PURSUED

In the last few years, fine perfume makers have pursued the counterfeit bottle racketeers so relentlessly, that a new twist to the racket has been evolved. The trick this year is to peddle small, purse-size containers that resemble but do not actually imitate in every detail the look of imported brand flacons.

To fill these flacons, the racketeer buys a large bottle of toilet water of a perfectly good brand, puts it into the flacons, and then sells them for $1 each. Since an 8-ounce bottle of good toilet water retails for about $10, and a purse-size flacon holds only a dram, the re-bottler makes 1,000 per cent profit.

The flacon racketeer uses carefully worded labeling, which does not actually claim the contents are "perfume." Words like "famous fragrance" are used, although in his spiel the peddler will use the word perfume freely. If caught, however, he can truthfully say that his label didn't say perfume.

These racketeers prey on the fact that much of the public doesn't know the difference between perfume, cologne and toilet water. Perfume is the most concentrated form of a fragrance, but people often use the word as a synonym for fragrance.

PERFUME AS GIFT

Many people would love to give perfume as a gift, but feel it is too expensive. Hence they are all too ready to jump at the racketeer's offer of a "bargain."

The racketeers know that men are especially ingnorant of the difference between perfume, toilet water and cologne, and that all most men know is the name of a brand. It is no accident that the most counterfeited perfumes are Chanel No. 5 and two or three of the Lanvin scents. These are the only names men are likely to recognize.

How can the consumer avoid the perfume cheats? First, be assured there is no way legitimate imported perfumes can get into unauthorized hands. The makers distribute only to stores, and even then only to stores with which they are well-acquainted. Aware of the racket, they will not sell to any well-spoken stranger who walks in claiming to own a store.

DOOR-TO-DOOR

Second, no door-to-door, factory or office peddler can possibly have in his hands any stock of legitimate well-known perfumes. Third, even some shops at this time of year may be carrying fraudulent bottles. They will be outlets which open for a few weeks and disappear after Christmas, obscure gift shops which usually don't carry perfumes.

You are perfectly safe in buying from stores which you know, and which regularly carry imported perfumes in stock. But only from them or don't buy at all. Warn men of the family, who are likely to be victimized away from home.

STOP OILY SKIN TO CHECK PIMPLES!

Don't pick, scratch, squeeze or merely "cover them up"

Doctors know that acne or pimples are caused by the germ called the acne bacillus. These germs invade overactive oil glands in the skin, cause blackheads and pus pockets; then your skin "breaks out."

What's needed is (1) to dry up the excessive oil that collects on skin; (2) to destroy acne germs on the skin, and (3) to stop itching and irritation so pimples can heal.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association asks our help in the crusade to fight tuberculosis through the purchase of Christmas Seals.

Christmas is the finest season . . . That is when we really live . . . When, without the slightest reason . . . Things are bought you couldn't give . . . To a tramp without offending . . . Him, or causing him to say . . . "Friend, you've done some foolish spending . . . I throw better things away."

But, you can't please everybody . . . So you give up in despair . . . And get Uncle Ned a gaudy . . . Tie that he's ashamed to wear . . . You buy Cousin Sue a sweater . . . Send some perfume to Aunt 'Tish . . . Or a small check in a letter . . . With a happy Christmas wish.

Great-grandmother, in Kentucky . . . Will expect a present, too . . . She's so old she will be lucky . . . If she lives the winter through . . . Day by day and hour by hour . . . She's a constant host to pain . . . And if it were in your power . . . You would make her well again.

You can't help your great-grandmother . . . You can't help the way she feels . . . But you sure can help some other . . . If you buy those Christmas Seals.*

(*Instead of wasting it on something nobody needs or wants).

Yule Traffic to Kill 38, Patrol Predicts

Thirty-eight dead . . . 380 injured . . . $4,750,000 in economic loss.

It is made by the Accident Reporting Division of the State Patrol and is based upon the traffic death rate this year and previous holiday experiences.

BEGINS FRIDAY

The Christmas holiday season officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday and extends through midnight Monday. Sgt. H. C. English said the patrol expects at least 23 persons to be killed and 209 to be injured in 480 crashes during that period.

English said the patrol is predicting 38 traffic deaths, 380 injuries and 1,178 accidents in the period from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Jan. 2.

Based upon the National Safety Council estimate of $125,000 in economic loss for each death, that would place the financial loss of the Christmas holidays at $2,875,000 and the cost for the combined holiday periods at $4,750,000.

23 DIED IN '59 HOLIDAY

There is every indication that traffic fatalities in Georgia this year will shoot past the 1,000 mark—far beyond the 995 killed last year, English said.

As of 4 p.m. Wednesday, traffic deaths numbered 981, which was 25 more than were killed in the same period last year. English said there is hope this year's total will be held at 1,025.

Georgia's worst year was 1956 when 1,138 were killed in traffic crashes.

Christmas Mail Flow Here 'Smoothest Ever'

The flow of Christmas mail here this year has been "the smoothest we've ever experienced," Postmaster Burl Sanders said Wednsday.

Sanders said the handling of mail during the holiday season has been "very current" so far, and postal workers hope to get all Yule mail on hand Saturday delivered in time for Christmas.

LAUDS COOPERATION

"They are gradually cooperating and realizing the advantages of mailing early," he said.

Sanders said outgoing mail hit a peak of 3,058,000 pieces Monday. The total for the corresponding day last year was 2,860,000.

Sanders expected incoming mail to reach its peak Wednesday night. There have been some interruptions in mail from the East and Midwest because of bad weather.

NO BACKLOGS

"We hope to clean up Saturday," Sanders said.

Skeleton crews will work Sunday and Monday to take care of special deliveries and anything that looks like Christmas mail, the postmaster added. Packages containing fruits and perishables will go out right away, he said.

Some extra Christmas help already is being released, but others will be kept on the job through Saturday if necessary.

There have been no backlogs of mail anywhere here this year, Sanders reported. Keeping two downtown offices and three stations open last Sunday afternoon "took the pressure off" Monday, he pointed out.

Sanders also noted that generally good weather has been a factor in the post office's favor this holiday season.

Mail here is running about the same as last December, when there were 35,892,000 cancellations, said Sanders, but the amount of mail handled for the metropolitan area is up.

Jaycees Stall In Search for Integrator

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi readily agreed to take the negative side, said Atlanta attorney James P. Hiers Jr., who is helping in arrangements for the debate.

"We have asked several prominent people, including Gov. Michael DiSalle of Ohio and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon," Hiers said. "But no one has agreed to speak in favor of integration."

"Since the desire of the Georgia Jaycees is that both sides of the issue be aired, we hope that one of the people who frequently express liberal thoughts in their own areas on civil rights will consent to speak out and be heard here in the South where the problem is not simple," Hiers continued.

The Associated Press reported that DiSalle said in Columbus, Ohio, Monday that he would accept the invitation if the Jaycees would agree to provide an integrated audience. Hiers said, however, the Ohio governor declined the invitation without conditions.

"This hand, met the other night at the regular Monday dpulicate session at the Elizabeth, N.J., YMHA, may be a good example of the triple cross; or how to fool your partner, dismay your opponents and earn (?) a top on the board," writes Milton A. Steinfeld, of Westfield, in presenting today's hand.

Expecting his wife, South, to play the hand at clubs, Mr. Steinfeld first bid his non-existent heart suit to take the suit away from the opponents. His partner was immediately pleased with hearts as trumps, and he had to go all the way to the six-level to get the contract back to clubs. This was a rocky slam he never intended to reach originally, but it was made with a favorable opening lead, a successful diamond finesse and a lucky heart split.

"Nothing could make me resist bidding one heart after the double of my wife's one-club bid," explains our contributor, "as I intended to bid clubs later and it looked like a good opportunity to steal East's heart bid. After South's jump to three hearts I was sorry indeed that I had not responded three clubs immediately, for I could see she would bid hearts every time I tried to go back to clubs.

"When she bid four no-trump, Blackwood, I tried to lie about the ace of clubs, hoping to be passed out at five clubs. But my wife would have none of that minor-suit game stuff, bidding five hearts. She realized the situation when I returned to six clubs, and she passed that bid, as well as West's exasperated double which followed."

West opened the ace of spades and continued the queen, giving South a trick with the king. Now by winning the diamond finesse and ruffing three hearts in dummy, establishing the heart king as a winner, South was able to take the rest of the tricks for six clubs, doubled, losing only to the spade ace.

On taking the spade king declarer ruffed a heart, finessed the diamond queen, ruffed a heart, returned to her hand with the ace of diamonds and ruffed a third heart with the club ace, dropping the king. She overtook the club 10 with the king, drew trumps and claimed two clubs and the heart king at the end for six-odd.

Without the spade opening, declarer has two losers in the suit.

Good Health

Jaundice Symptom, Not Disease

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like some information on yellow jaundice, proper foods a person should eat, etc.—J. T.

Jaundice used to be considered a disease, and the majority of us have heard reference to it as such. Maybe the younger folk haven't—only those of us who are old enough to regard rock 'n' roll as a fad rather than an art form.

Well, we have to change our thinking. Jaundice isn't a disease—it's a symptom. Jaundice merely means a yellowing of the skin, eyeballs, etc. It's a sign of something; the important thing is to find out what.

Bile, a valuable digestive juice which originates in the liver, is stored in the gall bladder, and then is released as needed into the digestive tract. Bile has a strongly yellow color.

If, somewhere along the line, the normal flow of bile is obstructed, and it works its way into the bloodstream, then the yellow color presently begins building up in the skin and other surface tissues (and also can be detected by suitable blood tests) and the "jaundice" color becomes apparent.

One place this yellow color shows up is in the eyeballs. So for general purposes, here's a rough rule to thumb: If the skin and whites of the eyes begin to take on a yellowish color, go to your doctor.

On the other hand, some people have a natural yellowish tinge to their skin, but the eyeballs are perfectly white. This is not "jaundice," and doesn't mean that anything is wrong.

Gall stones, gall bladder disease, obstruction of some other sort in the bile ducts, tumors of the pancreas, and certain blood disorders are all possible causes of this yellowing.

Since some of these can be quite serious, I suggest that people who notice a yellow in skin and eyeballs be checked immediately.

LET JOE TELL IT, HIMSELF—

JOE'S FATHER and mother can remember when, because of his shyness, they would have to come to his rescue during a conversation with strangers and say, "What Joe means is this . . ." But no longer. Today, Joe can speak for himself . . . and does. Not that he is loud or talks too much. Always polite and tactful, he knows when to speak and what he says is usually worth hearing. A change in Joe was apparent within a month after he became a newspaper carrier - salesman. "Since you will need to know how to talk with people the rest of your life, no matter what type of work you do, I think it is important you begin learning," Joe's father told him. "And one of the finest ways to learn is to have your own newspaper route." Joe knows now this was good advice. And he can see how proud his father is every time he says, "Let Joe tell it, himself."

DURING THE CHRISTMAS WEEK-END

Christmas has traditionally been the season when families enjoy their homes. This Christmas week-end will be a long one with even more people staying at home, so

Here's the perfect opportunity for you to reach those people, if you have something to sell, by using the classified advertising columns.

This Christmas week-end gives people not only time to shop those pages for the items they are looking for (and you are advertising them) but time to go to the place in question and see for themselves. If you are selling a car, a home, a refrigerator, stove or any other household item, or renting one for that matter, take advantage of the time which can be money.

Christmas week-end classified advertising deadlines are as follows:

Dec. 24, Saturday—Constitution and Journal deadline—Noon Friday
Dec. 25, Sunday—Constitution-Journal deadline—6:00 p.m. Friday
Dec. 26, Monday—Constitution-Journal (combined) deadline—Noon Saturday
Dec. 27, Tuesday—Constitution and Journal deadline—Noon Saturday

Corrections and cancellations for the Tuesday, Dec. 27, Atlanta Journal and Constitution will be accepted Monday, Dec. 26, from 2:00 p.m. until 4:00 p.m. at JA. 2-5450, extension 318, or at the Classified counter. No changes or corrections can be accepted for the December 26 paper after 12 noon, Saturday.

BOBBY WALSTON
Eagle Flies High

EX-BULLDOG FORGOT ACHES AND PAINS

'NEW' WALSTON GAVE EAGLES PUNCH

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Coach Buck Shaw hates to think of what might have been had the Philadelphia Eagles traded a soft-spoken end named Bobby Walston.

Shaw is among the first to admit that with Walston the Eagles wouldn't be in the Dec. 26 National Football League championship game here against Green Bay.

There were times when the Eagles thought seriously of unloading the former University of Georgia star. He was a chronic complainer and worrier, always concerned with some minor ache or pain. "Old Aches and Pains" was his nickname.

Things have been different this season. Walston himself admits it.

"I quit letting little things worry me," said the team's leading scorer, with 105 points. "I stopped worrying about bumps and bruises and concentrated on playing football."

Walston, who some said was on his way out as a professional football player, has had one of his finest seasons since joining the Eagles and the NFL 10 years ago as a 14th draft choice.

Although he's operated in the shadows of such publicized stars as quarterback Norm Van Brocklin, halfback Tommy McDonald and lineman Chuck Bednarik, his contribution to the Eastern Division champions has been every bit as great.

His field goal kicking—he booted 14 this season—was the difference in four of the Eagles' 10 victories. He kicked 38 of 39 conversion attempts and scored four touchdowns.

Talking as he limbered his valuable right foot for the big test against Green Bay's Western Champions next week, Walston said:

"I think the main reason for my good season has been my new-found ability to relax. I used to worry about everything. If I missed a pass I got so mad I couldn't see the next two or three. Now, if I drop one, I tell myself, 'So what, you'll catch the next one.' "

He attributes his improved field goal kicking to more practice.

"Kicking field goals is like playing golf," he says. "You have to practice your swing before you can hit the ball properly. I never had the proper time to practice before this season."

How does he feel about the title game against the Packers? "I've waited a long time for this day. I'm ready for it too," and he punctuated his statement with a 40-yarder between the uprights.

Paul Atkinson

(Sports Editor Jesse Outlar is on vacation.)

Ossie and the Bears

The question was as loaded as Sylvan's point-happy Golden Bears so Oswin (Ossie) Wadewitz, the 37-year-old former New York Yankee farm system pitcher-turned-basketball coach, neatly pitched a change-of-pace back to a slightly rotund visitor.

"Coach," the fellow asked Tuesday night after Sylvan had whomped Therrell in a record 116-35 flurry, "can Sylvan keep the state AAA high school championship again this season?"

Atkinson

"Let us simply say," said Wadewitz, "the dice are loaded against us this time more than ever. We will not have the advantage of surprise that we had in the state AAA tournament. You'll recall we won all four games in something resembling upsets. And any number of things could go wrong . . . injuries, off nights, etc.

"However, let me say this: I credit these kids of mine with being level-headed enough, so that if they lose, it won't be because of overconfidence.

"The competition is going to be keen this season. In our region you have Northside, Murphy and North Fulton that we've played who are rugged, and I hear Brown is coming fast. Then Druid Hills and Smyrna in 4-AAA are strong.

"We've already hit some tough people in those Kentuckians, especially Ashland. But I think we learned a lot—you generally do when you play one of the best teams in the nation. Our kids learned, for one thing, they're not invincible."

Just who are these "kids" who have suddenly hit the jackpot once, and are generally favored to do so again when The Constitution and GHSA get around to co-sponsoring another state AAA spectacular late in February at the Big Dome?

"They're the hardest-working people I've ever seen," answered Wadewitz. "This season we're starting five seniors, forwards Virlyn Gaynes and Bob Tuggle, center Lee DeFore and guards Terry Stephens and Tommy Roberts. They're together for the second year, three of 'em, DeFore, Roberts and Stephens, for the third season.

"To give you an example of the hard work bit, DeFore, our most improved player and a tremendous shooter either inside or outside, didn't even bother to come out for the eighth grade team because he thought he was too awkward.

—Now Pitching: Don Larsen and Wadewitz

"I just happened to stumble up on him in my physical education class when he was in the ninth grade. He was 6-3 then and you can always find a place for a man that big.

"He grew to 6-4 as a soph, 6-5 as a junior and is now 6-6 and has become that aggressive backboard man we didn't have early last season. You'll recall we lost three games to Brown and two to Northside because we got beat on the boards. But DeFore, Tuggle and Gaynes have whipped everyone rebounding this season.

"Are we better now? I'd have to say yes, because the bench's strong—probably stronger than a lot of people realize. Ronnie Dodson, Billy Seabrook and Bart Hickman are seniors; sophomore Jerry Baker is a fine prospect, and junior Charles Robinson can hit. In fact, Dodson, Robinson and Hickman saved us against Northside this season, subbing when we were ahead by only 10 and stretching that to 17.

"And you know that five played the second half against Therrell and scored 52 points. So we aren't weak on the bench."

That's the cast. How about the producer?

As long as Wadewitz has been a coach, he's been at Sylvan. That spans 11 years.

At one time the articulate Slinger (Wis.) High School graduate had ambitions of being a left-handed flinger for the Yankees. He progressed to Class C, and remembers once losing a Northern League pitching duel to Don Larsen, a Baltimore chattel at the time and who was later to achieve baseball immortality by pitching a perfect game for the Yankees in the World Series.

—He'll Take Billy Salter on the Backboards

"I was always around .500," laughed Wadewitz, "but the biggest win was getting a young lady from Greenville, Miss., Rosemary Foresman, to say 'yes.' Met her while I was pitching in the Cotton States League.

"In 1950 we heard there was a spot for a basketball coach in Atlanta. So Sylvan and I opened the doors together."

Earlier during the point-spattered day, that visitor accosted Stephens as he was honing his shooting for what was to later go down in the record books as the all-time City League one-team high.

"What kind of a coach is Wadewitz?" Stephens was asked.

"He's the greatest there is," said Stephens without hesitation. "Coach Wadewitz doesn't chew us out when we make a mistake. He just tells us calmly in the time-out huddles or at the half what we are doing wrong. You can believe that we don't commit that error again.

"Take that Ashland game we lost Saturday night. We made mistakes all over the place, and the fellows wish they could play that one over again. I guarantee we wouldn't throw the ball away like we did then."

The intruder had another question for Wadewitz. "Who are the best City League individuals he's seen?"

"For best rebounder," Wadewitz answered, "you'd have to go with O'Keefe's Billy Salter. Northside's Jerry Brooks was the best shooter, Brown's Roger Bolton the best ball handler and North Fulton's Wade Mitchell best all-around."

Maybe after this season, in "Best Team" category, he'll indelibly list, "Sylvan, 1960-61."

Duke Dumps Florida, 83-64, As Heyman Pumps In 34

Tops Ga. Sou. Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A smooth-working Duke University basketball team won its seventh straight game Wednesday night, breezing past Florida 83-64 in the feature game of a Coliseum doubleheader.

Sophomore Art Heyman flipped in 34 points and sat out the last five minutes. Heyman sank quarter-court shots, and hit from the corners and from underneath.

After the opening minutes, in which Florida held its only lead at 6-4, Duke steadily widened a victory margin and was in front 38-27 at the half. Heyman got 23 of his points in the first half when the unbeaten Blue Devils used a passing offense to thwart Florida's surprise zone defense.

Duke's accuracy from out on the court made the zone futile. In the game's last 10 minuutes, Florida switched to a man-to-man defense and held its own against Duke reserves. Duke is ranked seventh in the Associated Press poll.

Cliff Luyk paced the Gators with 21 points. Florida's scoring leader for the season, Bobby Shiver, was held to four points.

Wildcats Nip Illinois, 83-78

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's Roger Newman scored 24 points Wednesday night to lead Kentucky to an 83-78 victory over Illinois in the first round of the University of Kentucky Invitational.

In the other first round game, St. Louis defeated California at its own ball control game in an overtime 54-53.

Although Newman was clearly the Wildcats' star, little Larry Pursiful and reserve Jim McDonald had a hand in the win.

Pursiful, who joined Newman in driving through the Illinois defenses time after time, tallied 21 points. McDonald stole the ball with 47 seconds to play, was fouled as he scored and then made the free throw to protect a Kentucky lead that had dwindled from 13 to two points.

Texas, Hogs Tip Vols Tide

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Southwest Conference won the first round of the first Aluminum Bowl Basketball Classic Wednesday night, with Arkansas beating Alabama 83-76 and Texas whipping Tennessee 77-73.

Thursday night, the Southwest teams swap Southeastern Conference opponents, with the Razorbacks meeting Tennessee and Texas taking on Alabama.

Texas Sophomore Jimmie Gilbert sank two free throws with 14 seconds to play to ice Texas' victory over run-and-shoot Tennessee in the second half of the doubleheader. The Vols led throughout the first half but the Longhorns finally put rebounding and outside shotting together to take the helm midway in the second half.

Louisville Tops LSU, 72-53

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Louisville tightened its grpi on a top national basketball standing Wednesday night by defeating Louisiana State 72-53.

The Cardinals, ranked No. 5 in the Associated Press poll, were off and on during the first half and led 29-25 at intermission.

He'll Be Ready

QB Libertore To Be Ready For GB Tiff

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Quarterback Larry Libertore missed Florida's football practice Wednesday but Coach Ray Graves said Libertore should be ready to play against Baylor in the Gator Bowl game Dec. 31.

With Libertore, the flashy runner, missing, offensive work on the practice field featured the passing of Bobby Dodd Jr. and Tom Batten. Infante was outstanding as a pass receiver.

About three-fourths of the drill was devoted to offense but what little time was given to defense showed the varsity at its peak. Interior linemen throttled Baylor running plays and the secondary picked off passes consistently. Walt Hickenlooper, a defensive halfback specialist, was top man on interceptions.

After about an hour on the practice field, Coach Graves wished the players a Merry Christmas and sent them home for a holiday until Monday.

MVP Mitchell Leads Oglethorpe To Title

Petrels Swamp Sewanee, 60-39

By JACK WILLIAMS

Big Morris Mitchell, who's as quick as a kid stealing a watermelon, led Oglethorpe to a 60-39 victory over University of the South Wednesday night and the championship of the Petrels' Invitational Tournament.

A crowd of around 1,000 at the school field house saw the Stormy Petrels cut off Sewanee with only one field goal the last 18 minutes of the first half, and thus win with ease.

Mitchell, 6-6 center from Murphy High, was the spark of this amazing defense, batting down enemy shots with all the finasse of a hockey goalie.

The performance earned him an award as Most Valuable Player in the tournament, and he joined teammates Tommy Norwood and Roger Couch on the All-Tournament team.

Others named to the tornev team wree Monte Brakefield of Birmingham Southern and Sparky Edgin of Sewanee.

Lambuth College of Jackson, Tenn., won the tournament consolation title in Wednesday night's opener, toppling Birmingham Southern, 65-58, behind the 23-point performance of Jimmy Johns.

The fans, however, came to see Oglethorpe, and the Petrels—flashing a slick man-to-man defense—didn't let them down. The Tigers managed only 11 field goals for the game, and got so desperate near the end they were firing away from long range.

It was another in a long line of big wins for Garland Jinholster, the little Oglethorpe coach who has made basketball "Fun for the Family" in North Atlanta.

"People talk about wanting to see basketball action," Pinholster

Net Stars Hit Amateur Setup

SYDNEY, Dec. 21 (AP)—Promoter Jack Kramer Wednesday signed two of Uncle Sam's top tennis stars—Barry MacKay and Earl (Butch) Buchholz—and ridiculed charges that he was a wrecker of Davis Cup fortunes.

"MacKay and Buchholz knew they had contracts with me regardless of whether they won or lost in the Davis Cup," Kramer said. "Instead of putting pressure on them in the interzone finals, this should have made them more relaxed knowing their future was secure."

A Sydney Telegraph had said tampering by Kramer may have contributed to the Americans' surprise loss to the Italians at Perth. Similar pro offers to stars are blamed for Australia's loss of the Davis Cup in 1958 and the United States defeat in 1959 when Alex Olmedo was the target, the paper added.

"If they want to blame me for these setbacks let them — my back is strong and my skin tough," Kramer said, "but it is stupid reasoning."

Kramer signed MacKay and Buchholz to agreements promising each at least $50,000 in three years.

They launch their pro careers Dec. 31 at Christchurch, New Zealand, as part of a six-man troupe playing a World Series round robin for a $125,000 purse.

The two American aces took sharp slaps at the amateur game after coming to terms with Kramer a few hours after the promoter flew in from Los Angeles.

"I feel good for the first time," said Buchholz, who at 20 is youngest player ever to join the tour. "We have been taught to be honest and it is always a very uncomfortable and dirty feeling for us to take money under the table as we do as amateurs.

"What makes it worse is that amateur tennis authorities know these things are happening and they close their eyes to them. I am thrilled to be a pro and play against best players of the world."

MacKay, 25, a University of Michigan graduate, said he believes pro tennis offers the only realistic avenue for a person bent on playing the sport on a big-time competitive basis.

"Technically, a person wishing to devote himself entirely to tennis — as I do for the next few years — could not do it as an amateur because he couldn't afford it," MacKay said. "We know that it is possible under our present structure, but it is not for me. I want to do it above board."

(Edward A. Turville of St. Petersburg, Fla., first vice-president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, said "I'm pleased they are turning pro. The day an individual feels he should be able to make his living out of amateur tennis, that is the day he should either turn pro or turn in his racket.

("Our interest in the USLTA is not in two players but in the 6.5 million who play for pleasure.")

CHARGERS SAID READY FOR SAN DIEGO MOVE

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The Los Angeles Chargers of the American Football League are ready and willing to transfer their franchise to San Diego, sports editors of the San Diego Union and the Evening Tribune said Wednesday.

Gene Gregston, executive editor of the Tribune, and Jack Murphy, editor of the Union, said their information is true even though the Chargers management would likely deny it for policy reasons.

Gregston said that the Charges "have learned in one season that Los Angeles has been saturated beyond sensible proportions with sports," and that Barron Hilton, majority owner, and Sid Gillman, general manager-coach, favored moving to San Diego over other possible choices—Seattle and Atlanta.

Murphy said that the Charges "are just waiting for San Diego to pop the question and offer a suitable dowry."

In Los Angeles, a Charger spokesman said owner Barron Hilton is out of town. Then he repeated Hilton's statement of earlier this week that Hilton is a businessman and will listen to any offers, but plans call for the club to operate in Los Angeles in 1961.

Wade Questions Rams QB System

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The battered Los Angeles Rams should scrap their multiple quarterback system, quarterback Billy Wade said.

"I want to be the No. 1 quarterback from the opening day of spring training (next year). I do not believe in the two-quarterback system," he said.

Wade, who shared most of the Ram T-quarterback chores this season with Frank Ryan, said he has asked for a meeting with Ram Coach Bob Waterfield and general manager Elroy Hirsch.

"I want to find out just where I stand here," he told sports writer Maxwell Stiles of the Mirror. "I will be perfectly honest—I am not interested in sitting on the bench."

Wade blamed part of the Ram's miserable showing this season on platooning quarterbacks.

"I think this year we were not exactly sure of ourselves under the new system," he said.

Wade said he's asked for the showdown with the Ram brass because:

"It's been my ambition to be part of a real hard-nosed football team out here. We're making real progress. I want to play with a team that has the same attitude the Rams had when they had Waterfield, (Norm) Van Brocklin and (Tom) Fears in uniform."

The ex-Vanderbilt ace added: "We're eventually getting there, but I don't believe it can be done with the multiple quarterback system."

Afterward Waterfield did the talking.

"Bill and I agree that the matter henceforth should be treated as a Rams family matter and is not to be discussed on the outside," Waterfield said.

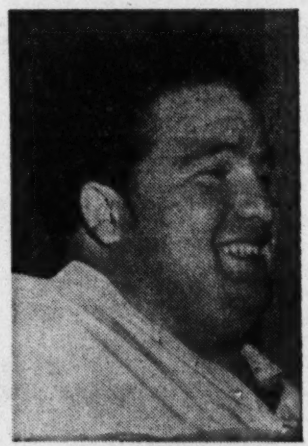
'ATLAS' ANDERSON PUSHES BUILDUP PLANS FOR YOUTH

By TOM STODDARD

Paul Anderson, the most mammoth native of Toccoa, Ga., not noticeably depleted in size or energy from varied weight-lifting sorties in the past 36 hours, stopped a moment Wednesday night to make a point for his latest labor—the Paul Anderson National Youth Foundation.



PAUL ANDERSON
Stages Atlanta Exhibition

"Everything I do from now on—wrestling, weight-lifting exhibtions and boxing, will be directed back into my youth work," Anderson said, after doing an exhibition for the Atlanta Boys Club benefit Wednesday night.

"The president-elect has expressed his knowledge of the need for a national physical fitness program, and I feel that the basis of any such program must be a certain amount of training with resistance exercises—such as weight lifting—which builds up strength, coordination and endurance," Anderson continued.

He and his advance man-publicitor-manager C. A. Veal further explained that the foundation has plans for a building, to be used in the rehabilitation of physically handicapped and underprivileged children, and that it hopes to help make popular body building exercises such as weight lifting in high schools, particularly.

"Actually," the 340-pound ex-Olympic champ continued, "my theory for a long time has been 'the more we can do for our young people, the better country we are going to have.' That's about what our slogan says. 'A stronger America tomorrow by building youth today'."

Having explained his youth program to the satisfaction of all, Anderson was prevailed upon to discuss the thing he does best—pressing, snatching and jerking more weight around than anyone else can.

"I did a benefit Wednesday for the crippled children at the East Tennessee Children's Hospital in Knoxville," he said. "and I set three new records—I pressed 422½ pounds, snatched 347½, and clean-and-jerked the 422½ again. Actually I might have done more, but it was hot in there, and I was sort of in a hurry.

"The total weight—1,192½ pounds—is above the world record total, and will be the sanctioned record for a professional."

Before trundling back to Toccoa, Anderson made a comment on weight lifting as a sport, after remembering the most he ever put over his head was 540 pounds.

"It gets sort of heavy when you get it to your chest," he said. "But I believe there is more mind over matter in weight lifting than in any other sport. You can look at that 500 pounds sitting there waiting for you. You can't see a four minute mile, and you can't feel it. It's easier to have a mental block with weights."

PACKER QUARTERBACK WARMS UP FOR EAGLES

Mobile Asks For Bama, Auburn Tiff

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The City of Mobile has formally requested that the Alabama-Auburn football game be played in Mobile next season.

The city commission sent letters Tuesday asking that the 1961 game be played in the Port City during a celebration marking the 250th anniversary of its founding.

The letters were sent to President Frank Rose and Head Coach Paul Bryant of the University of Alabama and to President Ralph Draughon and Head Coach Ralph Jordan of Auburn University.

The game hus been played in Birmingham's 44,198-seat Legion Field Stadium annually since the schools resumed athletic relations in 1948. Mobile's Ladd Stadium has a capacity of 40,500.

'IT'S UP TO THE BOYS'

Wounds, Weather Might Hurt But Won't Be Excuses---Vince

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Green Bay Coach Vince Lombardi said Wednesday wounds and weather may prove a factor by the time his Packers meet the Eagles in Philadelphia Monday for the National Football League championship.

But Lombardi also made it clear the factors would not be excuses.

"The game is the boys'," he said. "It's up to them to get themselves up for it. They've got plenty of incentive."

Players on the winning team will receive about $6,000 each, and those on the losing team about $4,000.

Lombardi commented as the temperature stood at 12 degrees this afternoon and the practice field was swept by a stiff northwest wind.

"That makes it tough to keep the players sharp in practice," the coach said.

Looking at his injury list, Lombardi found plunging fullback Jim Taylor "pretty banged up." He has leg and shoulder problems.

All-pro center Jim Ringo has a charley horse and it was only 11 days ago that a spike on Taylor's shoe went through his right hand.

Defensive back Jesse Whittenton has a pulled leg muscle.

"There are other assorted bumps and bruises," Lombardi said, "but everybody will play."

He expanded on his comment to include the entire Eagle operation when he said, "They've got a pretty sound football team. It had to be to win nine straight and clinch the Eastern Division title early."

Stars Push Passing In Shrine Practice

Blanda, Keeling North QBs; South Teams Still Unsure

MIAMI (AP)—It was passing, passing and more passing Wednesday as rival teams in the Shrine North-South all-star fotoball game Monday night in the Orange Bowl held their second workouts.

Dale Hall, Army coach who with Bump Elliott of Michigan is in charge of the North squad, was stringing along with Army's Tom Blanda as offensive quarterback, although he indicated Jerry Keeling of Tulsa would see plenty of action.

"I know Blanda and what he can do," Hall explained, "but I was quite impressed with Keeling. He has a funny way of throwing, but once he gets warmed up he really can pass."

North went through a busy two-hour workout at the University of Miami practice field. The 24-man squad was split into offensive and defensive units. Hall said he plans to use unit substitutions as much as possible, as it gives all the players a chance, and also gives them an opportunity to rest.

The offensive line has Ron Delfine, Pittsburgh, and Henry Opperman, Penn State, ends; Joe Wendryhoski, Illinois, and Alan Fiers, Ohio State, tackles; Bruce Tarbox, Syracuse, and Al Vanderbush, Army, guards, and George Joulwan, Army, center. Opperman will be the "lonely end."

At Memorial Field on Miami Beach, coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama had two offensive backfield units operating, and it was anybody's guess which was No. 1. The line situation was in a state of flux.

One backfield had Howard Dyer of VMI, at quarter; Laurien Stapp of Alabama at fullback, and Bud Whitehead of Florida State and Don Kern of VMI at the halves. The other had Bobby Skelton of Alabama at quarter, Bobby Nay of Vanderbilt at fullback, and Russ Morris of Vanderbilt and Leon Fuller of Alabama at the halves.

said at the finish. "Well, all they had to do was look at our defensive zone and they could have seen plenty.

"Mitchell was certainly deserving of the Most Valuable award. I've never seen any more beautiful defensive plays than he made out there tonight."

A Sewanee zone defense bothered Oglethorpe the first 12 minutes of the game and the score was tied, 13-13 with 7:30 to go. Then with Norwood, the game's high scorer with 19, leading the charge, the Petrels rolled in 17 straight points to take a 30-17 advantage.

Sewanee scored the first two field goals of the game for a 4-0 lead after a minute and 45 seconds had been played. But the Tigers of Coach Lon Varnell made only one more basket the rest of the half.

The halftime score was 32-15, and it was strictly no contest after that. Pinholster played subs the last 10 minutes of the game after his team had built up a 49-21 bulge.

Bob Nance scored 13 to trail Norwood in the scoring column, and Edgin led Sewanee with 13.

The Petrels hit 23 of 58 field goals for 39.7 percent. Sewanee made only 11 of 40 for 27.5.

Cooper-Led Bass Thumps Therrell

Hendrix Nets 25 Points In Losing Cause, 56-43

By PAUL ATKINSON

Therrell High School and 6-2 junior center Jerry Hendrix ripped to a pair of school scoring records, but still yielded, 56-43, to Bass Tuesday night.

A sparse crowd of 150 sat in on Charlie Hipsher's basketball outfit's most impressive showing that included a 25-point show by Hendrix, who pocketed 15 of 'em the last quarter.

Bass' Dwight Horton had seen his Blue Wave roll to a 48-21 third quarter advantage. Then he inserted his No. 2 unit, and it was against these that Therrell dropped through 21 points in the last eight minutes. Big Joel Cooper, husky Carter Roper and lanky Joey Mons hit 22, 10 and 10 points for Bass before retiring from the game.

In the opener, Bass girls won, 34-26, on 14 and 12 point efforts by Betty Allen and Martha Carmichael. Diane Lemons had 14 for Therrell.

Hipsher, the 116-35 victim of Sylvan's scoring thunder Tuesday night, was well pleased with his team's work. "These boys never quit," said Hipsher. "We're new at this game of basketball, but you can see we're getting better. Hendrix played a good game for us, and so did little Gary Fairly (5-1, 100 pounds)."

The 43 points broke a school scoring record of 40 achieved earlier this season. Hendrix had earlier scored 20 in one game, thus he passed that standard.

BASS (56)—Mons 10, Steed 4, Joel Cooper 22, Cook 2, Roper 10, Clayton, McGinnis, Werner 2, Joe Cooper 6, Cochran.

SCORE AT HALF: Bass 36, Therrell 11.

Sylvan Marches On, Overwhelms Fulton

Fresh from setting a new city scoring record against Therrell, Sylvan's high-powered offense slowed a bit Wednesday night but still breezed to an easy 63-34 win over Fulton.

Lee DeFore paced the Sylvan effort with 19 points, while Kenny Hudson netted a 12-point high for Fulton.

Sylvan jumped off to a 14-5 lead in the first quarter and was never in trouble in getting its sixth straight city win against no defeats.

SCORE AT HALF: Sylvan 37, Fulton 18.

Cash and Bennett swept both boards for the winners. Cash scored 24 points, Jon Kilgore hit 16 from outside, and Bennett bucketed 15. Charles Kinney led the losers with 21.

The game was nip-and-tuck until the third quarter, when North Fulton widened a 39-35 margin to 50-36. Chris Bell and Carolyn Smith paced the girls with 16 points. Kathy Harper scored 12 for Brown.

DUFFY GOES WITH GOPHERS OVER HUSKIES

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A veteran of the Rose Bowl battleground put his moral support and a tradition behind the Minnesota Gophers Wednesday.

Duffy Daugherty, the elfish Michigan State coach and winner of this game nine years ago, breezed into Minnesota's training camp with large smiles for the team and a firm handshake for Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath.

"I've got to pick Minnesota to beat Washington," he told sports writers. "They came out here to represent the Big Ten in a year when the conference was the toughest, top to bottom, since I joined the league."

Daugherty, on the coast for a visit with friends, got a quick briefing on Minnesota's training routine and commented:

"He's trying not to tire them early. I think that's right. The biggest worry a coach has in this game is getting his team ready too soon."

Daugherty's Spartans, who lost only to Iowa and Ohio State this year, did not play Minnesota.

"Minnesota beat Iowa 27-10," he said, "and that's good enough for me."

"Whoever heard of a pulled tendon in your big toe?" he asked.

"My one chance to play in the Rose Bowl and it may be shot."

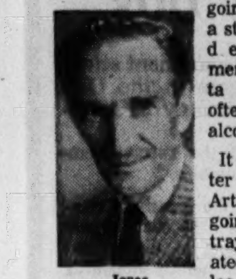
As I See It

Don't Let Junior Watch This Santa

By PAUL JONES

If there are any little ones pattering around your house you might want to shoo them off to dreamland before Twilight Zone emerges from The Tube.

Santa Claus is going to "tie one on," on TV Friday night. In other words Twilight Zone is going to weave a story about a department store Santa Claus who often winds up alcohol-laden.



Jones

It doesn't matter much that Art Carney is going to portray the inebriated St. Nicholas or that, according to Carney, the characterization will be done with restraint and respect. The youngsters should be permitted their own impressions of Santa Claus—sober.

If anyone in the acting profession can treat with sensitivity the inebriate, it is Carney.

He has found himself as the fellow who frequently takes "a couple too many" on several occasions. He was a boozer in "Call Me Back" and "Harvey," both of which were presented on TV.

When the Twilight Zone role was offered to him Carney said: "I was hooked."

"I portray Henry Corwin, a man who Serling describes as a kind of wilted white collar hobo—a philosopher of sorts—who once a year portrays a department store Santa Claus.

"Although Corwin arrives for his last day on the job in an inebriated condition, he still has possession of his faculties. He would rather drink than weep, and he must do one or the other," Carney continued.

The role was challenging. Corwin, as created by Carney, had a great feeling of compassion for his fellow, down-trodden man. He wanted with all his wishes to do something good for everybody yet he knew that he did not singlehandedly have this power.

"When I took the role from paper and put it into action," Carney said, "I really felt the things that Henry Corwin felt. I think there's a little bit of Santa Claus in all of us, but this Santa was just different enough to deserve his niche in The Twilight Zone," Carney said.

IN ONE SCENE Carney stumbles drunkenly to a seat on the curb only to be accosted by two bedraggled children in search of the goodness of Santa Claus. Carney weeps tears of compassion for "the hungry kids and shabby people, to whom the only thing to come down the chimney on Christmas Eve is more poverty."

Following this scene Carney found it necessary, on-lookers said, to take a 15-minute break to compose himself for the happier moments of the play which were to follow.

"But even in the bright, joy-filled scenes of the play, Carney kept a rein on his gentle portrayal of Henry Corwin," said a member of the production crew.

Crew and production members alike said that watching Carney enter the Twilight Zone was an experience they would remember for a long time.

Vincent Price

Channel 8, WGTV, the University of Georgia window of enlightenment and entertainment in Athens, will present the play with Vincent Price as narrator and Taylor Holmes as Scrooge, Thursday at 10 p.m. This puts it beyond the eyes of most of the youngsters who will be tucked away by this time, however.

* * *

THE JACK PARR show will have a touch of Christmas Thursday night. If you're up late wrapping packages you might find Patricia Neway's Christmas songs good listening. Patricia is now starring on Broadway in "The Sound of Music" and she will appear as Paar's special guest. The show starts at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 11.

Killers Hunt Down Deaf-Mute Witness

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—When The June Allyson Show first started, the idea was to have stories for and about women. Gradually they've abandoned the idea, and the extent of the abandonment is clear with Thursday's story—there's not a woman in thespeaking cast.

Perhaps coincidentally, "Silent Panic" is possibly the best story the program has done. It tells about a deaf mute working as a robot in a store window who witnesses a murder. And the killers are aware that he saw them. The ensuing chase has the expected suspense but also some unexpected compassion and tenderness. Harpo Marx plays the mute, the first straight drama he's ever appeared in.

first offered him the role, he turned it down—he's 67 and happy in his Palm Springs retirement. But Kortner persisted and Marx finally agreed, mainly because the role was unique for him. The script is the work of Arthur Dales, previously known mostly for his comedies for Danny Thomas and The Real McCoys. Judging by this one, he should try dramas more often. 10-10:30 CBS.

7:30-8 (Ch. 11)—Up until the overly-sugary ending, Guestward Ho! has a different approach to its Christmas story, thanks mainly to J. Carrol Naish as Hawkeye. This wily warrior is, naturally, in the Christmas business and he even sprays pine scent on his left-over-from-last-year Christmas tree stock. The plot has young Brook Hooton becoming perhaps the world's first child Scrooge—he doesn't have a bit of Christmas spirit. That changes, of course.

9-9:30 (Ch. 11)—The Douglas family underestimates oldest son Mike (Tim Considine) and his steady girl friend (Cynthia Pepper) on this week's My Three Sons.

All the outward signs point to an elopement, and both families go into action to head it off. The funniest part of the show, however, is a secondary plot involving second son Robbie (Don Grady) and his desperate need for some old clocks. The two plots are neatly interwoven.

9:30-10:30 (Ch. 11)—The Untouchables is pure fiction, and, in this case, fiction is stranger than truth, for this is one of the best they've had in months.

Elliot Ness (Robert Stack) and his boys get involved with the Nazis here, as a search for dope smugglers lead them to some Bundists. The characters, therefore, are different from the show's usual heavies. Jack Warden is a smuggler of German ancestry and Francis Lederer is a Nazi "roving ambassador" who's involved in the plot.

This is a cross between a crime story and a spy story with the usual quota of unnecessary violence associated with the former and the cloak-and-dagger ingredients (including a femme fatale) of the latter. The scenes of the Bund rally in Madison Square Garden are the real thing.

Christmas During the Civil War To Be Presented by WSB Sunday

WSB Radio's Witness will present a special holiday program Sunday, "Christmas—During the Civil War."

Producer Tommy Thompson says the program will include music of the era, letters from Confederate and Union soldiers to their loved ones during the Christmas season, poems written during the holiday season, and other documents from the Emory University Special Collections Library.

One of the letters from the collection was written by J. B. Mason, a Confederate soldier at Ringgold. Another is a clipping from the Richmond "Southern Illustrated News," written by Mary McCrimmon.

AT&T Stock Soars On Dividend Boost

Hits $102.50 High as Utility Makes Giant Share Offering

By RICHARD H. HOENIG

NEW YORK (AP)—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Wednesday boosted its common stock dividend about 9 per cent and made a giant common stock offering to shareowners.

The price of the stock soon touched an all-time high on the New York Stock Exchange although it closed a bit lower.

The dividend boost, to an annual rate of $3.60 a share from $3.30, will be effective in July and is the second increase in two years. AT&T common is the widest held of all with over 1.9 million owners.

RECORD FINANCING

The stock offering, at the rate of one new share at undetermined price for each 20 held on Feb. 23, 1961, probably will turn out to be the largest single financing effort in the history of any American corporation.

The twin announcement that came unexpectedly after a regular monthly nondividend meeting of directors, caused the price of AT&T stock to shoot upward on the New York exchange.

Within an hour it had crossed the $100-a-share mark—the highest since 1929. The price was $96.13 a share at the opening. The closing price was $102.50, up $6.38 for the day.

$310.25 IN 1929

The old all-time high was $310.25 set in 1929 and equal to $103.42 on the shares that were split 3 for 1 last year. Wednesday's top price was $103.50 or equal to $310.50.

Enthusiasm in the market spilled over to other telephone company stocks and at one time trading was suspended in stock of General Telephone & Electronics.

AT&T gave no specific reason for the dividend raise. An increase had been expected by many at the annual meeting in April but President Frederick R. Kappel said only, "We have never favored an up-and-down dividend policy and we are no more disposed to that now than we have ever been."

FOR EXPANSION

Directors indicated the huge stock offering is being made to provide money for the Bell System's continued expansion plans. Kappel said this week that AT&T will spend $2.5 billion in 1961 to "provide the enlarged facilities and the new and better means of communication America needs."

With this total the company's plant and equipment value will pass the $25-billion mark.

The new dividend will amount to 90 cents a share a quarter. However, the company has already declared an 82½-cent quarterly payment to be made Jan. 10 to shareholders of record Dec. 9. A spokesman said he assumed the April payment will be at the old 82½-cent a share rate.

The 10 per cent dividend increase of July 1959 accompanied the utility's only stock split of record.

Earnings of the system have mounted to record highs quarter after quarter. For the latest period, the three months ended Aug. 31, profits rose to $318,033,000, equal to $1.40 a share on the parent company—AT&T—stock.

Directors said the stock offering will be made next year with rights to purchase being mailed in early March. The purchase price of the stock would be fixed at that time and is expected to be "somewhat below" the market price at the time.

Since there are 223,400,000 shares of AT&T common stock outstanding, an additional 11 million could be issued if all rights were exercised. Stockholders will have the alternative of selling their rights on the market.

Pennington Elected Ga. Power Director

J. F. Pennington Sr., vice president and general manager of Georgia Power Co., has been elected a member of the company's board of directors, John J. McDonough, president, announced here Wednesday.

C. B. McManus, recently retired chairman of the board of the Southern Co. and former Georgia Power Co. president, was elected an honorary director.

Houston Tied By Atlanta in House Building

Atlanta tied Houston, Tex., for second place in rate of increase in housing units over the nation during the past 10 years, the U.S. Department of Commerce reported here.

Atlanta advanced from 35th to 26th position in rank in total number of housing units available in 1960 as compared with 1950, the report stated.

Atlanta's pick-up of 60,515 in the past decade was exceeded only by New York, Los Angeles, Houston, Chicago, Dallas and San Diego, analysts said. The city's 64 per cent rate of rise was topped only by San Diego, the nation's leader with a 74 per cent gain.

The Commerce department said Atlanta has added housing facilities to its area in the past 10 years at the rate of slightly more than 500 each month. In number of housing units counted by the Census Bureau this year, Atlanta had 155,045, the seventh largest number of all Southern cities. Cities exceeding Atlanta were Houston, Baltimore, Washington, Dallas, New Orleans and San Antonio.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Merger of Minute Maid Corp. into the Coca-Cola Co. was approved Wednesday by Minute Maid stockholders.

Stockholders of Coca-Cola will vote on the proposal Thursday at a special meeting in Wilmington, Del., and are expected to approve.

The merger is scheduled to become effective De. 30.

FIRST DIVERSIFYING

Minute Maid produces frozen concentrated fruit juices, single strength juices and instant coffee, and has 30,000 acres of citrus groves in production or under development.

The acquisition of Minute Maid would be Coca-Cola's first diversification outside of the soft drink field.

Coca-Cola is sold through 1,100 bottlers in this country and 670 in 110 foreign countries. The firm earned $33,581,679, equal to $7.87 per share, on sales of $342,257,378 in 1959.

Minute Maid's 1959 sales of $99,123,912 produced earnings of $4,669,528, or $2.87 per share.

Imports May Swallow Textile Gains in '60s

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Commerce department study issued Wednesday says the expected gain in the U.S. textile market during the next 10 years may be swallowed up by foreign imports.

"For the United States millman, imports are still a cloud on the horizon. Even if the domestic market does expand substantially, the gain and more could be absorbed by imports of yarns, fabrics, and end products."

While imports were outside the scope of the study, the report noted that shipments from abroad could have an adverse effect on the domestic industry and could have an important psychological impact.

"In any given market," it says, "a relatively small percentage of an imported item priced well below the domestic price has a major effect in upsetting the price structure and the normal competitive relationships."

To improve the industry's competitive position, the study urges: (1) the adoption of higher and more consistent quality standards and their promotion among retailers and consumers, (2) revised merchandising practices, giving more recognition to the retailers' needs and problems, and (3) "a thorough study of all means by which more adequate supplies of seasonal merchandise can be made available in season to the consumer."

The study was made at the recommendation of the Senate commerce committee which asked for "sound projections of the future industrial and consumer demand for textile products."

The report says textile consumption will continue to increase through 1970 but that the long-range outlook depends primarily on the course of the economy.

ATT Record Peak Paces Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—American Telephone zoomed to a new all-time high on news of a dividend boost and pulled an irregular stock market to a gain on average. Trading was heavy.

AT&T and Standard Oil (N.J.) were the volume pacemakers of a surprising day in which 4.06 million shares were traded.

The list was wallowing in a confusion of yearend transactions late in the afternoon when news came that AT&T plans to raise the dividend to 90 cents next July from the present quarterly rate of 82½ cents and that rights will be issued to shareowners to buy one new share for every 20 held, presumably at lower than the going market price when the rights are offered.

HISTORIC HIGH

The stock soared to a high of 103½, for a net gain of 7⅜, before closing a point below its top. The high was equivalent to 310½ prior to the 3-for-1 split and topped the historic peak of 310¼ reached in 1929.

General Telephone & Electronics tagged along in the wake of AT&T, rising more than a point.

An upsurge by Jersey Standard followed a statement by its president, M. J. Rathbone, that volume is running 5 per cent ahead of a year ago, putting 1960 sales at a new high, and that profits will be the biggest since 1957.

MOTORS DEPRESSED

Motors were depressed by a government prediction that 1961 auto sales will fall nearly 14 per cent below this year's total. Oils improved under Jersey Standard's leadership. Steels were narrowly mixed as holiday plant shutdowns were scheduled. Chemicals also were irregular. Most aircrafts and tobaccos declined.

Corn products proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and raised the dividend to 60 from 55 cents. The stock rose 1¼.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed.

Corporate bonds were steady in more active dealings.

Best way we know of for most people is to invest it in good common stocks.
Why?
For two fundamental reasons:
(1) Because, on average, since the turn of the century, good common stocks have gone up a little over 3% a year in price . . .
(2) Because nine out of ten stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange are currently paying dividends that average about 4% a year.
We realize of course that you can't buy "averages," that past performance provides no proof of the future, and that some stocks did a lot better — some a lot worse — than the averages.
Still those figures do give you some idea anyway of the risks you take in investing—the rewards you might expect.
When it comes to just which stocks are best suited to you — your financial situation, your investment objective — our Research Department will be glad to help you make the most prudent selections.
There isn't any charge for this service, and you're not obligated in any way. Simply outline your over-all financial situation in a letter addressed to —

Are Surplus Funds A Problem?
They can be you know. Not many people can afford to let surplus cash remain idle—and how to employ it to the best advantage is sometimes a problem.
Each individual has specific needs and objectives. One may need dependable income, another safety of principal, still another may be interested chiefly in long term appreciation.
Many have found the answer in carefully selected securities, stocks, bonds, or mutual funds.

Hedges Dip Near Cotton

Trading was mixed in new crop months.

Rain was reported over much of the belt but dealers noted that most of the crop has been harvested, with rains likely to lower the grades of the residue still in the fields.

CONSTIPATION Make You Weak?

Here's a way to feel better fast!

NO NEED to let constipation "get you down." To get the prompt relief you need to feel better fast, ask for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They're your best bet because they are a "balanced" combination of ingredients scientifically formulated to soften the intestinal wastes and stimulate intestinal function . . . without causing cramps or weakening digestive distress!

IN CLINICAL study Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets rated 71% better, on the average, than other laxatives tested. These included candy and chewing gum laxatives, so-called "liver" pills, a well-known bulk laxative, milk of magnesia and ordinary mineral oil.
